Diplomatic Crisis Looms Over Defence

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—A Canadian-U.S. diplomatic crisis appeared to be in the making Wednesday night as the state department accused the Canadian government of failing to contribute effectively to joint North American defence.

In a statement that took issue with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's interpretation of Canadian-U.S. nuclear weapons negotiations, the department in effect called on Canada to meet its nuclear commitments, saying the Soviet bomber fleet will be a significant threat throughout this decade and that an effective continental defence against this "common threat" is necessary.

The department called a press conference to issue a statement stripped of the usual diplomatic niceties that befitted reference to a friendly country and slammed away at the major points the prime minister made in his nuclear statements in the Commons last Friday. He was not named.

Canadian and U.S. diplomatic sources said later the action was the strongest ever taken in modern times by the U.S. against a Canadian government and that grave repercussions could emerge on either side of the border.

One possibility seen is that the U.S. may leave the question of what future role Canada should play in the established North American air defence system in which an American is commander and a Canadian his deputy.

The importance of the American action was pointed up by a White House source who said President Kennedy had been made aware of Ottawa developments and the nature of the state department rebuttal.

An American source suggested further developments would depend on reaction expressed by Mr. Diefenbaker in the light of the statement, issued here and by the U.S. embassy in Ottawa.

Mac: French Action 'Brutal'

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Wednesday night Britain would consult with the United States and its Commonwealth and European Outer Seven partners following the collapse of British negotiations to enter the Common Market.

Macmillan charged France had "firmly and rather brutally" brought the 14-month-long negotiations to an end after it became clear that outstanding points of difference "were about to be settled quite quickly."

In a television broadcast to audiences in Britain, France, Germany, Denmark, Sweden and Belgium, Macmillan said "we must work for the lowering of tariffs all round, for that is

Forces' Pay Rising?

OTTAWA (CP)—A pay increase for the armed forces is receiving consideration, Finance Minister Nowlan said Wednesday.

But he declined direct comment on Ottawa rumors that the 125,000 members of the navy, army and air force are to get an eight-per-cent boost retroactive to Jan. 1.

Mr. Nowlan said the treasury board still is dealing with salary adjustments for various civil service classifications.

Bit of Snow Beats Victoria Forecast

A few light flakes of snow were falling on Victoria shortly before press time this morning. Earlier, a weather forecast said light snow or freezing rain may fall here this afternoon.

Britain Back In Arctic

LONDON (AP)—Blizzards swept Britain and much of Western Europe Wednesday with the return of Arctic cold to many areas. Temperatures plunged to freezing in central London and traffic chaos spread across the country. A man was killed in a crash involving 10 vehicles north of the British capital.

Navy Taste Changes After Dry Rum Run

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Tipping note from the public accounts: The navy spent $127,679 for rum in the 1961-62 fiscal year compared with $118,770 in the previous year.

The navy also changed its brand of rum, switching its total purchase to Lamb's Rum Company Limited, Montreal, from Captain Morgan Rum Distillers Limited, Lasalle, Que.

Such a switch is not made frivolously. A five-man testing panel in the defence department's chemists' inspection branch puts rum samples submitted by distillers through rigorous organoleptic (taste and odor) tests.

The tasting board used to be all-civilian when the tests were begun in 1959. But the navy insisted on representation, which it now has.

The tasting process is strictly a dry run, though. The taster may only roll the rum around on his tongue and then spit it out, sipping water and nibbling on soda biscuits between his exertions. And the tasting bee lasts only a couple of days because the navy buys its rum in bulk once a year.

There are no full-time tasters. Volunteers taste and sniff the bouquet for only 15 or 20 minutes, and then return to their regular work.

Dealing with other continental and North Atlantic defence developments, McNamara said Wednesday.

McNamara told a congressional armed services committee he doubts the Russians would attempt a sneak Arctic missile attack because this would reduce the missiles' atomic payload and accuracy.

MAIN THRUST

The Pentagon therefore concludes that if an attack should come, the main thrust would be across the frozen Arctic wastes, sweeping down on Canada and the U.S. on a route along which lies a huge ballistic warning system that would provide an "adequate" 15-minute warning time.

Arctic radar surveillance is to be continued and strengthened and the bomb alert system is to be improved so that the North American Air Defence system centred on Colorado Springs, Colo., would know automatically where the enemy warhead landed and the yield and height of the burst. This would provide more information about the possible radiation spread.

Threat Over Arctic

Better Warning Sought

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States is seeking to improve its North American bomb alert system on the assumption that the main Soviet missile and bomber threat still comes from the Arctic.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said Wednesday.

McNamara told a congressional armed services committee he doubts the Russians would attempt a sneak Arctic missile attack because this would reduce the missiles' atomic payload and accuracy.

MAIN THRUST

The Pentagon therefore concludes that if an attack should come, the main thrust would be across the frozen Arctic wastes, sweeping down on Canada and the U.S. on a route along which lies a huge ballistic warning system that would provide an "adequate" 15-minute warning time.

No Nuclear Ideas

U.S. SLAPS AT CANADA

OTTAWA (CP)—The U.S. state department said Wednesday night the Canadian government has "not as yet proposed any arrangement" regarding nuclear weapons "sufficiently practical to contribute effectively to North American defence."

The statement was issued by the U.S. embassy here. It said there have been "inconclusive discussions" between the Canadian and U.S. governments concerning provision of nuclear warheads for Canadian forces.

TALKS PROPOSED

The statement added: "Shortly after the Cuban crisis in October, 1962, the Canadian government proposed confidential discussions concerning circumstances under which there might be provision of nuclear weapons for Canadian armed forces in Canada and Europe."

"These discussions have been exploratory in nature; the Canadian government has not as yet proposed any arrangement sufficiently practical to contribute effectively to North American defence."

AGREEMENT

Defence Minister Harkness said Monday in a statement that he believed an agreement on provision of nuclear warheads for the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile and Voodoo jet interceptor "can be arrived at in the near future."

Both Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Mr. Harkness have referred to "negotiations" with the U.S. The state department used the term "discussions."

'CONFIDENTIAL'

The state department also made a point of saying that the discussions were "confidential" and that the "disclosure" concerning them had been made in the Canadian Commons.

The statement also said the Anglo-American Nassau agreements "raise no question of the appropriateness of nuclear weapons for Canadian forces in fulfilling their NATO or NORAD obligations."

'IN DOUBT'

Mr. Diefenbaker said in the Commons last Friday the Nassau agreements have "placed in doubt" the nuclear role of the RCAF air division in Europe.

The state department revealed that the "discussions" with Canada concern Canadian forces in NATO as well as in NORAD. Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Harkness referred only to NORAD.

NOT ALTERNATIVE

The statement said reference was made in the Commons debate. It was made by Mr. Diefenbaker, among others, to NATO's need for more conventional forces. It added:

"A flexible and balanced defence requiring increased conventional forces are not an alternative to effective NATO or NORAD defence arrangements using nuclear-capable weapons systems."

AIR DEFENCE

"NORAD is designed to defend the North American continent against air attack. The Soviet bomber fleet will remain at least throughout this decade a significant element in the Soviet strike force."

"An effective continental defence against this common threat is necessary."

PHASING OUT

Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday: "More and more there is phasing out in connection with the bomber threat."

The state department said provision of nuclear weapons to Canadian forces would not involve "expansion of independent nuclear capability, or an increase in the nuclear club."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday: "We will do nothing to extend the nuclear family."

CUSTODY

The statement concluded: "As in the case of other allied custody of the U.S. nuclear weapons would remain with the U.S. Joint control fully consistent with national sovereignty can be worked out to cover the use of such weapons by Canadian forces."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday: "We will maintain Canadian sovereignty."

Desire to Help

Pearson Voices Surprise

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson said he found it "surprising" that the United States government found it necessary to issue a statement Wednesday night about Canada-U.S. negotiations on Canadian acquisition of nuclear warheads.

"It was prompted, no doubt, by the desire to help clear up the confusion produced and compounded by conflicting versions of our defence policy from the prime minister and the minister of national defence," Mr. Pearson said in a statement issued by his office.

KEY PART

"The most important part of the statement is the confirmation that talks initiated by the government of Canada with a view to the acquisition of nuclear weapons for Canadian forces have been going on for the last three months."

"It is also important to learn from the U.S. government that the Nassau conversations had no bearing on this Canadian problem."

No Comment By John D

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday night he would make no comment on the United States state department's statement concerning nuclear weapons until after he has studied it on his return to Ottawa.

'Bombshell' Says Thompson

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday night that the U.S. state department comment on Canada's nuclear policy debate is a "bombshell" to say the least—it could be the spark to topple the government.

He said Prime Minister Diefenbaker must either back up a statement by Defence Minister Harkness or ask for his resignation.

Mr. Thompson also chastised the U.S. for "blatant and diplomatic interference" in Canadian affairs.

He said the method chosen—a statement issued in the press by the U.S. state department rather than a diplomatic note—may strengthen Mr. Diefenbaker's position, in spite of prime ministerial indecision on nuclear policy, "because all true-blue Canadians will resent the approach."

Greater Victoria School Bill: $9,380,000

By IAN STREET

Local municipalities yesterday received copies of the $9,380,073 Greater Victoria school board budget for 1963—an increase of 7.34 per cent over last year.

Unknown factors, officials said, make it impossible at this time to judge the impact of the budget on the local taxpayer.

One of the keys to the puzzle will be produced when Premier Bennett brings down his budget, expected Feb. 8. At that time it will be learned what was meant by a throne speech reference to increased grants for school districts.

It won't be until mid-April, however, that the final answer is known, when the government announces the amount in grants for each school district and sets the basic mill rate for school purposes.

Despite the overall increase, operating costs for Greater Victoria schools in the current year, exclusive of teachers' salaries, do not contain any non-shareable expenditures which would be chargeable in full to local taxpayers.

The budget does include one major non-shareable item of $355,161 for teachers' salaries.

A school board spokesman said yesterday the increase to be borne entirely by local taxpayers reflects the 4 per cent wage boost won by teachers recently at a cost of more than $200,000.

The 1962 budget contained $380,139 in non-shareable teachers' salaries.

This non-shareable cost could be modified if new aid to school districts takes the form of increased basic salary grants for teachers.

one of the best ways in which we can hope to increase world trade.

"And we can do this in the tariff negotiations, the Kennedy round as it is called, which is just about to start in which all of us—the Commonwealth, Europe, America, European Free Trade Association, all of us—will take part," he said.

The prime minister said the failure of Britain to join the Common Market "revealed a deep division of beliefs between us and our friends."

'BACKWARDS'

"I am sorry to say that France, or at least the present government of France, is looking backwards, not forwards," he added.

Macmillan said the Brussels negotiations broke down Tuesday "not because they were going to fail but, curiously enough, because they were going to succeed."

Macmillan continued:

"What happened at Brussels yesterday was bad—but for us, bad for Europe and bad for the whole free world.

"A great opportunity has been missed. Now it is no good trying to disguise or minimize that fact. What we and our friends were trying to do at Brussels was something very creative, and attractive and dramatic."

RULE ALONE

After saying the present French government was looking backwards, Macmillan observed:

"They seem to think one nation can dominate Europe or, equally wrongly, that Europe can rule alone without friends and without allies."

Macmillan said Britain must co-operate with the rest of the world, including the Commonwealth and the United States, "in an equal and honorable partnership, and that is why we in Britain are determined to stand by the Atlantic alliance."

"All through the negotiations we have been in the closest touch with the Commonwealth countries at every level. Now we shall take counsel with them again as to what is best to be done."

Area School Budget Up 7.34 Per Cent

It could also take the form of a further drop in the basic mill rate for education. The figure in 1962 was 15.1 mills, down from 15.5 mills the previous year.

Another, relatively minor, unknown factor is the amount of federal grants in lieu of taxes received by local municipalities and paid to the school board by March 1.

Board officials said the increases in expenditures for 1963 were "inescapable" for several important reasons:

- Pupil enrolment has increased by nearly 1,000 with resulting increase in teaching staff and the kindergarten program had been expanded. Forty new teachers will be needed next September.
- Fifty-two new elementary classrooms are in operation this year and 44 more will be ready this fall. This has

Spending Deadline Tories Won't Make It

Job Loss Below Average

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberals and New Democrats, unmoved by the approaching end of the government's spending powers, stood firm Wednesday in their intention to give full debate to the 1962-63 spending program.

Liberal Leader Pearson indicated after a caucus meeting of Liberal MPs Wednesday that his party will take all the time considered necessary to examine the $6,000,000,000 program.

Liberal MP Robert Stanbury said the New Democrats, who also held a caucus meeting Wednesday, will take no steps to cut short their responsibility to examine the spending of the people's money.

Their statements appeared to indicate the government will run out of time with its spending program unapproved. The program was submitted to Parliament last February as estimates of what would be spent up to March 31, 1963.

EXPLORE TODAY

Since that time, the government has financed operations by grants of temporary spending but these powers expire today.

Meanwhile, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson forecast a late-spring or early summer election but described as "irresponsible" any talk of upsetting the government in the next two weeks over its spending program.

TRADITIONAL FRUIT

Raisins have been a traditional ingredient in foods for festivals and feast days since early Egypt.

Gaglardi Given Jaycee Ovation

Opponents of Peace and Columbia power development are "craze-hangers" who don't belong in B.C., Highway Minister Gaglardi said last night.

He received a standing ovation at a Victoria Jaycee meeting for a speech on topics ranging from his driving record to the word of God.

"There will be Peace power," he said. "Peace power is absolutely necessary and so is Columbia."

He said B.C. had reached that conclusion from predictions based on population and said B.C. is using almost three times as much power as 10 years ago.

THINK AGAIN

"If you think that without Peace and Columbia power you're going to keep up with industrial developments where 300 per cent as much power is being used after one decade, then you'd better think again."

He also cited greatly increased value of manufacturing industry in the province in the past 10 years and said B.C. now is in a position to begin manufacturing with some of its own raw materials.

"I am neither a qualified theologian or a qualified politician because I like acting better than talking," he said.

He jokingly suggested this was why he was active enough to get nabbed so often for speeding in his car—and never seemed to be able to talk his way out of a parking ticket.

Indians Hail Welfare Switch

An agreement between the federal and provincial governments that will enable Indians to receive the same social welfare treatment as other B.C. residents was hailed by chiefs of the two bands here last night.

Indians living off the reserve can apply directly to provincial or municipal welfare agencies for assistance. The Indian Affairs department will then reimburse the provincial government.

Non-Indians living on reserves can apply to the Indian agent and the provincial government will reimburse the federal government for this service.

Previously, Indians living off reserves had to apply to the Indian agent when in need of welfare. Non-Indians living on a reserve had to apply for assistance through the provincial welfare office.

Chief Edwin Underwood of the East Saanich band said another advantage of the new legislation would apply in the case of a woman who married a non-Indian and lived away from the reserve.

"If her husband should die or the family have had luck this means she is entitled to return to the reserve and receive assistance."

Many Blood Spots Vanish Surgery Removes the Rest

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My four-month-old daughter was born with a large red spot on her arm. Our family doctor says it is a collection of tiny blood vessels and will disappear when she is 4 or 5, but it seems to grow bigger and thicker every day. Should I take her to a specialist? Is it possible to have it removed?—Mrs. J.D.

Such a spot is called a hemangioma. I'd gamble that your doctor said it "may" disappear in a few years, because many of them do.

Some don't, but they can be removed surgically, and it's a familiar operation. If the hemangioma continues to grow, consult your doctor so he can send you to a specialist.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a very low blood count and my doctor has prescribed iron medicine which I take every four hours. I keep falling asleep at work and am afraid I'll get fired. What is low blood count? Someone has told me it can be very serious if neglected.—E.M.

In this case it means a lower than normal number of red blood cells. There are several possible causes—gradual loss of blood; faulty diet; glandular trouble; and more.

Depending on the type, some are extremely serious if neglected; other cases merely mean that you keep on feeling tired and draggy when you shouldn't, if you could get the red count up. Iron is one of the chief medications, and extremely beneficial in many instances. The big question is has your doctor determined the cause? Finding (and curing) it is better, naturally, than continually taking iron to make up for the deficiency.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 16 and want your advice concerning a diet. I know it isn't best for a girl my age to go on a diet but I think you will agree with me when I give you the statistics: I weigh 140, am 5 feet 2, and my measurements are 33-27-39½.—Wilma J.

I agree that you'd do well to get rid of some weight.

Don't go on a "crash diet," which starves you temporarily, soon forces you to start eating again, and is not good for your skin or your health.

Instead adopt a new mode of living—and eating. Stop between meal snacks; go easy on fatty or fried foods, and rich sugary items. No pie, cake, doughnuts. If you get hungry, eat fruit or raw vegetables. Drink skim instead of whole milk. Sugarless soft drinks are still better from the calorie standpoint.

Get ample protein—eggs, lean meat, poultry, fish, cheese. Eat smaller meals, spread the butter thinner, avoid gravies, no seconds.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have been freezing the milk we use. Soon I am going to be starting my baby on whole milk and am wondering if the freezing takes away any important vitamins or minerals.—Mrs. L. K.

Freezing can cause some of the lighter proteins to precipitate—it doesn't harm the food value, but these particles are more likely to clog the nipples of bottles. The faster the milk is frozen, the less trouble from precipitation.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a woman have venereal disease for two years without knowing it? What are the symptoms?—A.A.

Yes, this is possible because the primary sore of syphilis is painless and can go unnoticed. First awareness of this disease may be through a positive blood test. Gonorrhea, on the other hand, produces a discharge which is usually very irritating so the patient is likely to seek attention for relief. This disease, however, should be treated immediately upon discovery.

Now She Reads with Toes

MOSCOW—A Soviet girl who can read and distinguish colors with her fingertips is also able to tell them apart with the toes of her right foot and the tip of her tongue, doctors said.

The news agency Tass said the abilities of Rosa Kuleshova, a 22-year-old girl from the Ural Mountain town of Nizhny Tagil, apparently stemmed not only from sensitive nerve endings in her fingertips, but also from special activities of her central nervous system.

Rosa has been undergoing examination ever since it was discovered that, with some training, she could distinguish different colored lights falling on her fingers.

BOISE, Idaho—Held in confinement by the U.S. Air Force for two months after his exoneration on a murder charge, Airman Gerald Anderson has finally been freed. His attorney had questioned in U.S. Court the right of the air force to exist under the U.S. Constitution.

PARIS—French composer Francis Poulenc died of a heart attack at his Paris home at the age of 64.

VANCOUVER—Mayor Bill Rathie said Sons of Freedom Doukhobors will be given relief if they break away from the main sect body and apply as individuals. Meanwhile the Doukhobors continued to gather for the 14th consecutive day around the Cenotaph in downtown Victory Square.

HALIFAX—John Baptiste Winckow, 106, who said he came to Canada to "help open up the country," died at Camp Hill Hospital. He was Halifax's oldest citizen.

NEW YORK—Disc jockey Alan Freed has been ordered arrested for not paying a $300 fine in connection with his guilty plea to a charge of commercial bribery. The charge grew out of the 1960 investigation of payola in broadcasting.

VANCOUVER—"Bill" was tall, dark, handsome and expensive, an English girl complained to police, Avril Smith, 22, who arrived in Canada from London about three years ago, said "Bill" cost her $1,000 during a whirlwind romance that crumbled when Avril, getting suspicious, asked "Bill" for identification. "Bill" promptly walked out, leaving her with an unused wedding dress.

OTTAWA—Trade Minister Hees said Tuesday prospects are encouraging for the export sales of Canadian frozen fish to Britain, France, West Germany and Italy.

CAMBRIDGE, England—Prince William of Gloucester announced he will hold his second 21st birthday party to-night in St. James' Palace in London for 400 friends he was unable to accommodate at his first party.

WEST VANCOUVER—Retired businessman Allan S. Gentles, 75, was fined $10,000 or six months in jail for willfully evading income tax payment on some $32,000. Gentles was given two weeks to pay the maximum fine.

PARIS—Belgian movie starlet Catherine Spaak, 18-year-old niece of Belgian foreign minister Paul-Henri Spaak, was married in a civil ceremony here to Fabrizio Capucci, 22, brother of fashion designer Robert Capucci.

LOME, Togo—Sgt. Emmanuel Bodjolle, leader of the recent coup that resulted in the assassination of president Sylvanus Olympio, has been appointed chief-of-staff of Togo's army.

JACKSON, Miss.—Negro James Meredith, 29, said yesterday he plans to enroll for the spring semester at the University of Mississippi.

NEW YORK—Mayor Robert Wagner said publishers and printers are still as far apart in the 53-day-old New York newspaper dispute as they were when he started his marathon negotiations.

NOTTINGHAM, England—Herbert Wakelam won a divorce on grounds of desertion from his wife who left him in 1924 after one month of marriage. He explained the delay: "I didn't want to stir up trouble."

New Force 'Radical'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said Wednesday the Pentagon is studying a "revolutionary" proposal for organizing air-assault units that could mean heavy new purchases of Canada's Caribou transport planes.

McNamara told the House armed services committee further testing and evaluation were needed before the order was given for large-scale creation of the new forces.

SPECIAL UNITS
The heavy Caribou purchases could mean if tests support the idea of new "air-assault divisions" and "air-cavalry combat brigades" backed up by special units to give added airlift and reconnaissance.

The air-assault division, travelling by helicopter instead of by foot, could swoop deep into enemy territory, flank an enemy, skim over otherwise inaccessible terrain or serve as a highly mobile reserve.

The air-cavalry brigade would attack the enemy's flank or rear.

Heavily-armed helicopters would carry the men into action, but the twin-engine Caribou, an army favorite because of its short takeoff and landing capability, would be a key element, bringing in supplies.

McNamara also disclosed:
● The U.S. has about 650 bombers on 15-minute ground alert, more than 200 Atlas, Titan and Minuteman missiles on launchers, and 144 Polaris missiles on submarines—all ready to retaliate against an attack.

● President Kennedy's $51,000,000,000 military budget would strengthen the U.S. still more while Russia and Red China "struggle for power."

● Russia still has about 17,000 military personnel in Cuba, probably manning and controlling the chief elements of Cuba's air defence system.

● The U.S. has a force of 11,000 men in Viet Nam.

Terror Attacks Starting?

SAIGON (UPI)—A series of Communist bombing attacks stirred fears yesterday the Viet Cong has launched its long-threatened campaign of terrorism against Americans in South Viet Nam.

Meanwhile at least half of the U.S. army's 68 troop-carrying helicopters were grounded for mechanical reasons.

Satellite? Never!

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Wednesday Britain must maintain its own nuclear deterrent until there is world disarmament.

"We must not become satellites," he said to open a Commons debate on his Nassau pact with President Kennedy.

Market Scoreboard:

French Win, Lose

BRUSSELS (UPI)—France won another round Wednesday in its efforts to keep Britain out of Europe but was rebuffed by the other five members of the Common Market on the question of US and British investments in Europe.

The French victory came when British negotiations to enter the European Coal and Steel Community and the European Atomic Community were broken off.

The rebuff to France came when the finance ministers of West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and The Netherlands agreed to boycott a meeting called by the de Gaulle government to discuss barriers to Anglo-American investment on the continent.

KIDNEY AID for RHEUMATISM Pain

After 21 years, at least 100,000 men are made miserable by common urinary ailments caused by a germ, Bacteroides Coli. To quickly combat the secondary action, muscular pain and disturbed sleep caused by kidney and bladder irritations, try taking an internal COTEX antiseptic bath for a few days. All you do is take 3 little COTEX tablets with a glass of water. In addition to its cleansing antiseptic action, COTEX is also an endogenous pain reliever for Rheumatism, Headache, Neuritis, and muscular pains. Get COTEX from drugstore, Post Office Dept.

Be Grateful, Says John D

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commonwealth nations should be grateful for the concern Britain showed for them in the Common Market negotiations, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday.

"Britain could have secured entry into the Common Market under the terms of the Treaty of Rome as it was," he said. Quebec's French-language press showed neither surprise nor disappointment at Britain's failure to gain entry into the Market.

Le Devoir of Montreal calls it "a logical rupture."

Heil de Gaulle!

IT IS NOTHING LESS than bizarre that of all nations it should be France which has so utterly and contemptuously destroyed Britain's hopes of entering the European Common Market. For no country owes another so much as France does Britain.

It was Britain who staunchly stood shoulder to shoulder with France in two world wars. It was Britain who offered Frenchmen common citizenship with her still free though sorely wounded people in France's hour of defeat.

It was Britain's ships and Britain's sailors who saved 100,000 French soldiers from the death trap of Dunkirk. It was Britain who provided the haven for General de Gaulle and his Free French forces to lick their wounds and regain their spirit and later gained for them a place in the higher councils of war.

It was Britain, and Britain alone, who did these things, just as it was Britain who stood sole champion of the French cause when France was naught but a whipped and degraded nation.

All this has now been forgotten by General de Gaulle in his disturbing, almost maniacal drive toward self-power.

But equally disturbing is the apparent unwillingness of the remaining Common Market nations to dissuade him from his present course. Their half-hearted attempts to side with Britain have been disdainfully swept aside in a fine but terrifying de Gaulle demonstration that it is he who is master of Europe's destiny and will brook no interference from those who would dispute his claim. And on this, none has had the courage to challenge him.

This revelation of de Gaulle's Napoleonic complex; this baring of the pathetic complacency of his European partners, should be reason enough to make even the Macmillan government—so blind for so long to the political pitfalls involved in a European union—thankful that its way has been barred to such a menace.

It is better that Britain should find out now the frightening involvements of such a union while she is still free to make her way with the help of the Commonwealth and the United States than to have found out after she had helplessly committed her sovereignty and economy to the mercies of a European partnership dominated by a man determined to become dictator of Western Europe.

Though it is true that Britain can never separate herself from the fortunes of Europe, the price demanded for full politico-economic integration as sought by Mr. Macmillan is too high, and always has been. Britain can survive without Europe as she will now prove. But it is doubtful if Europe can survive without Britain.

Hockey MPs

THE federal Tories are taking a leaf out of the Liberal book. They have asked Doug Harvey, the star defenseman of the New York Rangers, to stand as a Conservative candidate in a Montreal riding. They hope thus to cash in on his fame as a hockey player, as did the Liberals when Red Kelly of the Toronto Maple Leafs won a parliamentary seat last summer.

There is probably no good reason why a hockey player shouldn't be capable of becoming an MP, but one doubts that choosing a candidate simply because he is a well-known hockey player—patently the gambit in both instances—is appropriate to the parliamentary scene. Other proved qualities germane to the business in hand should have the priority.

It is difficult to see also how a NHL player can successfully combine games playing with his responsibilities as an MP; the latter are bound to suffer.

In any case the Tories are rather late with their bid; they should have gone after Mr. Harvey while he was the star captain of Montreal Canadiens. He is, hockeywise, an enemy.

And if on the eve of election he should score the goal that defeats the Canadiens—poof might easily go his chances of winning a seat.

A Weak Case

POLICE roadblocks at festive times are becoming too much of an imposition, according to Mr. Bert Price. The Vancouver-Burrard MLA has characterized them as "witch-hunts" because they constitute not simply a search for impaired drivers but also an examination for compliance with all the vehicular rules and regulations—so numerous, he says, that you can't go around the block without breaking some of them.

This last assertion undoubtedly has more than a grain of truth to it, in general application. But Mr. Price exaggerates. The figure he himself cites destroys his case.

In 2,000 cars stopped in one Vancouver roadblock, he says, the police found no drunks, but they issued 14 tickets and 18 warnings for other infractions of the rules. Less than 1 per cent of the drivers checked received a ticket, in other words, which hardly indicates police severity.

The fact that no impaired drivers were discovered moreover speaks volumes for the efficacy of the roadblocks in persuading drinkers to shun the wheel. An inconvenience the police checks may be for those who are stopped, but if they have this effect, they cannot be resented by any driver who has even a modicum of interest in his own protection from calamity on the roads.

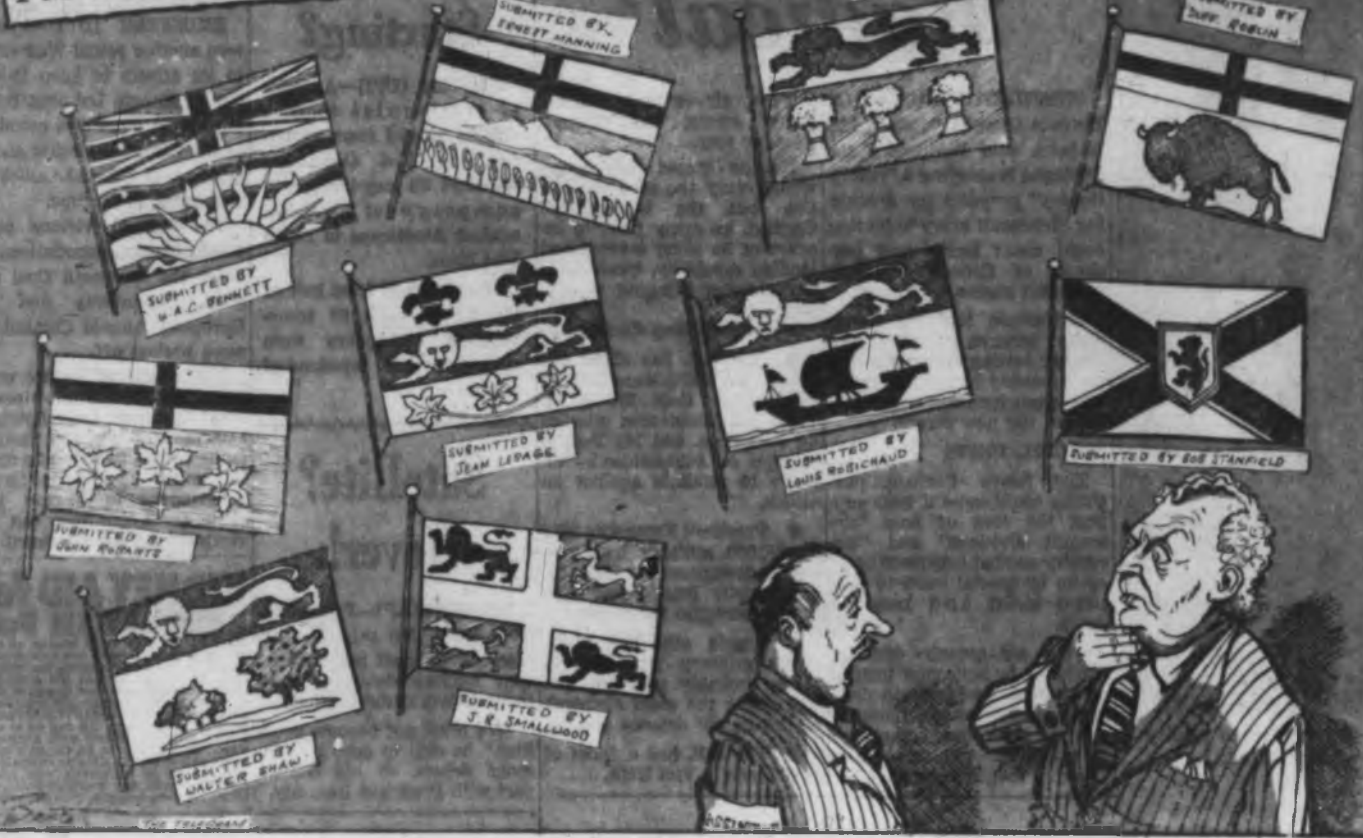

Hansard Titbits

It Is Liberal

MR. DOUGLAS: I want to point out that the Liberal position is completely without logic when they say, in effect, "We do not want nuclear weapons, but since we are committed to accept them then we should take them and then try to negotiate ourselves out of them." Why not negotiate ourselves out now? What, in effect, the leader of the Liberal party is saying is that we should sign a bilateral agreement. We should train personnel in the use of nuclear weapons, knowing all the time we are doing so that we are going to renegotiate ourselves out the moment the ink is dry on the paper.

Mr. Woodlams: Isn't that terrible.
Mr. Berger: It is stupid.
Mr. Knowles: It is Liberal.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships,

By TOM TAYLOR

THE world is changing. I said the other day, talking of machines. It's more interesting to talk about girls. Or, rather, "young women of blameless character."

As they were eighty years ago. The world certainly has changed. What sprightly young miss of today, no matter her station in life, would in packing her bag for Canada include "one stuff petticoat, one high calico bodice, one pair of slacks, one pair of strong leather boots," not to mention other items about which I'd better be discreet.

This was part of the apparel enjoined in 1885 on the "domestic servants" from the age of 14 upwards enrolled under the clerical auspices of an Anglican society for householders in this country. Mostly, I gather, in Eastern Canada.

In 1885 the Canadian population totalled about 4½ millions. It must have been an affluent society, for the scarcity of household labor was such that "a yearly immigration of some thousand women is needed to supply the deficiency."

So runs an advertisement dated October, 1885, displayed in the "Commonwealth Journal" in connection with the current activities of the Women's Migration and Overseas Appointment Society in Great Britain.

More than is necessary nowadays it was "protected immigration." No young maiden of eighty years ago had need to be afraid. She was "shepherded" all the way from Liverpool to the situation awaiting her, there to be welcomed "by the Canadian mistress, good wages given her, and placed in a position permanently to improve her own prospects."

It was of course a venture some step in those days, crossing the ocean to a comparatively unknown land. By present-day standards however it was not an expensive venture.

The Atlantic fare was £3, although it took 12/6 to get from London to Liverpool, where "respectable lodgings" were provided on the eve of departure. From Quebec to Montreal the fare was seven shillings, to Toronto £1, and to Winnipeg £2. 8s.

How one wishes these fares still stood!

The trousseaus considered necessary—this is my word but undoubtedly most of the young women became brides—were in three parts: travelling, hand-bag use, and in the box marked "not wanted on the voyage."

Some of the travelling garments I have mentioned. In the hand-bag the girls were advised to include towels, soap, brush, comb, and blanket among other items. In the box not to be opened were, of course, additional petticoats and such like, and, rather surprisingly, one Sunday dress. I should have thought the latter would be needed en route, if only to show it off.

More strange periods is that Bible, prayer and hymn books were also locked up in the "don't open" box. There must have been a service on board, surely.

Thus it was, anyway, there came to Canada many a good girl, whose descendants doubtless gave her pride and enriched both the domestic scene and the wider life of this country.

Renewed Test-Ban Doubts

By ROBERT STEPHENS
from London

RUSSIA'S acceptance of the principle of international on-site inspection removed what had hitherto been the biggest obstacle to East-West agreement on a nuclear test ban. But the subsequent statement by the Soviet foreign minister, Mr. Andrei Gromyko, that France must be included in a test ban has again raised doubts as to whether Russia really wants an agreement.

For Mr. Gromyko must know perfectly well that President de Gaulle will not accept a test ban agreement in present circumstances and that America and Britain have no means of compelling him to do so.

It may be that Mr. Gromyko's reference to France was merely a bargaining tactic which might not be insisted upon if agreement can be reached to Russian satisfaction.

On the other outstanding differences.

Of these, the most important is the number of on-site inspections to be permitted each year on Russian, American and British territory.

When the Geneva nuclear test ban conference adjourned last month, the gap between Russia and the West after four years of negotiation had become very narrow but still deep. It was concerned only with the methods of detecting small underground explosions and distinguishing them from earthquakes.

Both sides had agreed that all other tests, in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space, could be detected and identified by their own nationally operated detection instruments. Internationally controlled instruments or inspectors were not needed inside Russia or America to be sure that such tests were not being carried out.

This fact had already been acknowledged by the Western powers in September, 1961, when in an effort to forestall Russia's resumption of testing they offered a ban on all except underground tests without any international inspection system. The offer lapsed when the Russians carried on with their tests but it was revived by the West after the United States had finished its own series of atmospheric tests last spring. But the Russians again turned down the Western offer.

They insisted that there should be a total test ban or none at all, arguing that the Western plan for a partial ban would simply legitimize underground testing by the West.

But it was obvious that the Soviet delegate at Geneva, Mr. Tassarkin, was simply finding reasons to hold up an agreement, at least until Russia had finished her new series of nuclear tests in the atmosphere which continued until the end of last year. This had become increasingly difficult and politically embarrassing for the Russians, because the United Nations General Assembly had come out strongly in favor of a compromise to stop nuclear tests and there was strong pressure in the same direction from the eight non-aligned countries at the Geneva disarmament conference.

Russia then made a slight concession by proposing the setting up of three automatic seismic recording stations—the so-called "black boxes"—on her territory, and hinted that the black boxes might be checked periodically by visiting international inspectors.

But the Western powers insisted that even with the black boxes, some on-site inspection would be needed. In his exchange of letters with President Kennedy, Mr. Khrushchev has now accepted again the principle of an annual quota of on-site inspection which he first acknowledged when Mr. Macmillan went to Moscow four years ago.

Washington Calling

Heavy Handicap

By MARQUES CHILDS

ON the broad shoulders of the stocky, intensely serious governor of New York rests a burden that would seem on the face of it to put him under a hopeless handicap. Nelson Rockefeller, who is beginning to appear as the inevitable choice for the Republican nomination for president in 1964, must unite a badly divided party, catch the national eye and set out to defeat the Democrat in the White House who, as of today, stands high in popular rating.

In the first place, to beat an incumbent who is an activist president at the end of his first term is all but impossible. Only twice in this century has an incumbent president been defeated, once when Theodore Roosevelt fielded a third party against William Taft and again when Herbert Hoover was confronted with the gravest depression in the nation's history.

But if the two-party system is to have continuing vitality then, regardless of the chances the challenge must be a vigorous one and it must anticipate a strong and cohesive approach to the test of 1968. General Eisenhower's discovery in 1952 that he was a Republican was a happy accident which returned the party to power in the executive branch after 20 years in the wilderness. Such an accident is not likely to occur again.

In facing the next 18 months when he must try to insure the nomination, Governor Rockefeller is proceeding with extreme caution.

So the governor talks today about the problems of New York State and what he has been able to do toward solving them in his four years in office. Sifting national issues, he stresses the way in which New York has achieved a balanced budget at the same time responding to the demands for ever-expanded aid improved services in education, health and all other fields. Certainly it would be hard to exaggerate the dilemma of the states as pressures rise for more and better services while at the same time the beleaguered taxpayer hits out at the target nearest at hand—the governor or the mayor, rather than faraway Washington.

This points up the difficult situation in which the Republicans find themselves today. As defined in James MacGregor Burns' penetrating new book, "The Deadlock of Democracy," which has caused a stir in Washington, America does not have a two-party system but a four-party system. There are the congressional Democrats and the presidential Democrats, the congressional Republicans and the presidential Republicans. The same label are as divided as those that have the separate name tags.

The presidential Republicans have their base in the governorships and that base was greatly enlarged in November when Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio threw out the Democrats and elected Republicans. But at the same time almost every state is in trouble and for a very simple reason.

While federal expenditures have increased since 1953 by less than 60 per cent, state and local spending has gone up by more than 100 per cent. Sharpening this contrast is the fact that most of the federal increase has gone for defence rather than services, such as aid to education, that might help to ease the burden of the states.

This is the pinch Governor Rockefeller feels as he puts together his new budget. Under laws already passed by the legislature he must find an additional $187,000,000. But he would not raise taxes. So some difficult carpentry is called for in assembling a budget that will be two to three hundred million dollars over the $2.6 billion of the last fiscal year. And severely a day goes by that one group or another doesn't come in to tell the governor that more education or more aid of one kind or another is essential.

Rockefeller can hardly avoid discussing national issues. But what issues and with what emphasis? He feels strongly that Cuba presents a danger almost as great as before the Soviets to live up to the agreement. He has grave doubts whether President Kennedy's economic program will stimulate the sluggish economy. While these may be the subject he will hit hard, inevitably, as he reflects on that fateful convention in 1964 he must recall that there are almost as many differing views on every issue as there are leaders among the congressional and presidential Republicans.

New Problems

Prosperity's Price

By JOHN CAMPBELL
from Tokyo

JAPAN is discovering—like Western countries before it—that prosperity brings its own problems. There is a severe shortage of nurses, housemaids are becoming impossible to obtain, and service industries are suffering from a dearth in labor. Even the traditional geisha profession is feeling the pinch.

The welfare ministry estimates that an additional 15,000 nurses are urgently needed. Several hospitals in the Tokyo area have been forced to close wards because they have not the staff to look after them.

In the domestic field up to five years ago, country girls could easily be found to work as resident maids for as little as $15 a month, with at most two days off a month. Today such girls are very difficult to find. If they can be found they usually ask for a minimum wage of $45 a month and a day off a week. Competent cook-maids can earn from $75 to $90 a month, plus full keep—if they can be found.

Japan is also finding out that rising living standards bring with them less service. Once it was axiomatic that you could buy anything from a sausage to a grand piano up to 10 o'clock at night. Today more and more local stores are closing on Sundays and also shut their doors at 8 p.m. each night.

Higher living standards are adding to congestion in tourist and entertainment facilities. Such sports as golf and skiing, which 10 years ago were available only to a few, are now national crazes. Golf clubs, which charge initial entrance fees of up to $3,000, are swamped with applications, and many young businessmen get up at 4 a.m. in order to have a relatively undisturbed round of golf before work.

Paradoxically, the increased prosperity has meant that the most acute labor shortage is being felt in the youngest bracket—middle school and high school graduates.

As a result the wages paid the youngest group of employees have risen more sharply than those of any other group.

This is partly because new industries—particularly the electronics industry—are based largely on the use of young labor. But it also arises from the growing desire of young Japanese to complete their education. The proportion of youngsters who seek employment immediately after completing their compulsory education is steadily falling.

A broader problem raised by prosperity is the pressure exerted by domestic demand on export industries. Vast industrial enterprises, including electric home appliances and automobiles, have been developed primarily to serve Japanese consumers. As a result they add to the nation's import bill while doing nothing to earn foreign exchange.

No one has expressed a desire to go back to the "good old days"—but more and more businessmen and government officials have come to realize that booming prosperity raises just as many problems as it solves.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

ACCORDING to an old friend of mine who has put away a lot of money in his time, and is still looking for more, he is not a rich man. "A truly rich man," he says, "is the one who can't think of anything he wants. I realize this is true, and it makes me madder than a wet cat to think of it. For example, I have an old uncle who lives on a farm. He drives me crazy. He has every mortal thing on earth that he wants. Time and again, I have offered to lend him money for new machinery, or to buy a few acres to add to the far end of his farm. He simply doesn't want them. He can't be bothered with them. What he has got is absolutely ample in every respect. He laughs uproariously at my offers. What's the matter with you, he asks me. Have you got some kind of itch?"

In his employ, my aggressive friend has men who decline advancement. They are content where they are. They are without ambition, yet efficient and most competent men. But they have got where they want to be.

"They're the rich ones," protests my friend. "And they make me feel foolish."

German Generals Bid for Power

Strauss' Fall Used As Lever

By UTE RICHTER
From Bonn, West Germany

A small, but powerful clique of ultra-conservative top-rankers in Chancellor Adenauer's new general staff are conspiring to use the fall of Defence Minister Franz Josef Strauss to wrestle supreme control over the military out of the hands of the civilians.

This, once more, would make the Wehrmacht a "state within a state," the first step to free military leaders from parliamentary control.

The officers—centred around a few leaders of the West German General Staff Academy in Hamburg—have opened a propaganda campaign in which they clamor: "Remove the forces from the rotten game of politics."

They began their campaign immediately after the forced resignation of Strauss, the bultheaded, barn-storming Bavarian who fumbled so badly in the Spiegel affair—the worst crackdown against a newspaper in West Germany since the days of the Nazis.

They told "friendly" newspapers that Strauss, whom they had followed faithfully until he fell into disgrace, was the living example for how bad party politics are.

What they meant became clear a few days later when Manfred Martini, one of the most extreme right-wing writers in West Germany, made an outright plan in Deutsche Zeitung, an ultra-conservative paper, to create a general supreme commander of the West German forces.

Under the West German constitution—enacted under U.S., British and French supervision in 1949 when its makers were still under the shock of the total defeat of the Third Reich—parliament is the final authority for any decision.

In 1955, when rearmament began, amendments concerning the armed forces were made. They clearly said that the civilian defence minister, elected by and responsible to parliament and nominated by the president, is the supreme commander of the armed forces in peacetime. In war, supreme command goes to the chancellor.

The leading men in the Bonn general staff and Manfred Martini, their most prominent spokesman, now complain that this rule is bad.

They say it paralyzes the army, makes it subject to "politicizing," and—in case of emergency—will prove dangerous because no military man who knows his business is in control.

Responsible politicians in Chancellor Adenauer's Christian Democrat party as well as in the opposition Social Democrat party say this campaign is a greater threat than anything yet experienced in post-war West Germany.

The nationalist Free Democrats—Chancellor Adenauer's unruly coalition junior partners—came out in open support for the generals.

Herr Erich Mende, their leader who was decorated with the Knight's Cross—highest Nazi war medal—in the last war, publicly voiced the demand that a general should be made defence minister.

There is no general in Chancellor Adenauer's new forces who has not played a leading role in Hitler's Wehrmacht.

Most of them began their career in the old Reichswehr—the 100,000-man army permitted Germany after her defeat in 1918—which developed into a "state within the state," paying Hitler's way to power and ultimately keeping him there.

So logically, the generals now move into phase two—removal of civilian, political authority over themselves and their forces.

And this, it seems, is where we came in.

Could a Hitler Rise Again?

Yesterday was the 30th anniversary of Adolf Hitler's ascension to power. Could such a thing happen again?

The answer is in the affirmative. Totalitarianism, brown or red or some other color, could win again in Germany, in other nations, in the world.

My solution for the future is that the individual must stand up against totalitarianism where it arises at whatever the cost.

It can only be blocked by the individual who himself dares to express his individuality and his independence in business, in the union, in the party or party caucus even if it results in reprisals. And the reprisal some day could mean his head!

—HANS ZEHRE, Editor of West German newspaper Die Welt.

Domination, Then Co-Existence

'Grand Design' Takes Shape

By PHIL NEWSOM

For good or evil President Charles de Gaulle has seized the initiative in Europe.

And by power of the veto he already is exerting the "third force" he foresees for a new Europe of his own grand design, with both British and United States influence reduced to zero.

The de Gaulle concept calls for a Europe stabilized and dominated by France and Germany working in close collaboration, and living in co-existence with the Soviet Union.

The leadership would be French. France would be Europe's spokesman in Moscow.

For the western alliance, its unity shaken as it has not been since the end of the war, there are massive problems.

Policies which have been keystones for nearly 20 years seem about to be changed, new alliances about to be formed.

For in a world of power politics, de Gaulle is determined to forge his own power bloc and devil take the hindmost.

De Gaulle never has made any secret of his Grand Design. It is a Europe which stretches from the Urals to the Atlantic, independent of any outside direction or tutelage, particularly from the United States.

It is a very long term vision, one he certainly does not expect to come about this year or next or perhaps even for five or 10 years. But he is convinced that sooner or later the Soviets will break with Red China and turn to the West. When they do, he wants to be ready to negotiate with them.

It is indeed a long-term vision, for de Gaulle is 73.

As de Gaulle has pressed his own nuclear and European policies, the rift he has opened in western unity has been compared in importance to the split between the Soviet Union and Red China.

De Gaulle is seen in London as a statesman driven by an almost Napoleonic ambition and determination to align Europe under French leadership.

The "Little Europe" of the six Common Market nations is to provide the nucleus in the wider pattern of de Gaulle's third-force concept. Already de Gaulle is casting his eyes beyond the "six" to the Scandinavian countries and to Spain.

In de Gaulle's concept, Germany's co-operation seems to be a pre-condition for success.

Germany would seem therefore to hold the key. The smaller European countries, unhappy as they are, cannot afford to back out because they could be crushed economically by the Franco-German alignment.

It seems almost certain in London that if his "grand design" is to stand any chance of realization de Gaulle will have to come to terms with Russia. An ultimate result could be the withdrawal of American forces from Europe which diplomats in London consider to be among the long-term targets of de Gaulle's policy.

De Gaulle's French nationalism resists the predominance of the United States in the western alliance. He is trying to secure for France a position of leadership which he cannot hold, neither militarily nor economically.

To him, the Common Market is just one instrument of Quotes

In 1914 or 1940 we should not have dared to say that Britain was not part of Europe.—Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak.

Britain's exclusion from the European Common Market will be fraught with tremendous consequences.—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

De Gaulle Vision Long-Term

French leadership, and a way to increase France's potential to a level comparable to that of the United States.

That is why he opposes British membership in the Common Market. Within the Six, France has no rival. But Great Britain with her still great worldwide influence, would be a competitor for leadership.

If de Gaulle's concept is to be fulfilled an eventual accommodation will have to be made with the Soviet Union.

As the western world takes assessment of de Gaulle's now clearly stated position there are the remaining questions of alliances now existing and the course to be taken in the future.

For Britain, immediate problems are most pressing.

For 15 months her foreign and domestic policies have been based on expectation of eventual Common Market entry. A likely next step seemed to be a renewal of British efforts toward freer world trade through her association with the European Free Trade area (EFTA), through the Commonwealth and the United States and through GATT, the General World Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

As for de Gaulle, his intentions have been declared but victory still is not his. He has achieved a Franco-German alliance which still must be ratified by the Bundestag. He had banned Britain from the Common Market and he had declared independence of U.S. leadership in NATO.

There are those who believe that the Franco-German alignment is the key to the future.

Observers here feel that de Gaulle, with his 19th century mind, thinks he is the only Western statesman who can see beyond the cold war—which he dismisses as a passing moment in history—to the troubles ahead.

De Gaulle believes there will be peace with the Russians and he wants to be the one who makes it.

President Kennedy, possibly the most powerful man in the world, has warned about the realities of the situation with millions of Communists intent on world domination.

But de Gaulle, at the moment, is viewed as a greater menace to U.S. plans than Khrushchev.

There is talk of a "reversal of alliances."

De Gaulle and Adenauer have joined hands in a treaty, but Adenauer, at 87 a crumbling pillar, is obviously the junior partner.

De Gaulle is the first leader to refute successfully the idea that all western policy must be made in Washington.

For all his faults and his disdain of "uncivilized" North Americans, he has the vision to look beyond the day-to-day inanities of the east-west struggle.

And his ideas are worrying Washington.

ment in its present form represents a mere passing stage, with Germany antedating taking over the leadership after de Gaulle is gone.

At present Germany is going along with de Gaulle politically and with the U.S. in NATO—if forced to choose between de Gaulle's inward-looking Europe and President Kennedy's outward-looking Atlantic alignment, diplomats believe Germany would vote for the United States.

This could mean the death blow to de Gaulle's ambitious plans.

Cold War Passing Phase

De Gaulle's Ideas Alarm Washington

Suspicion is mounting here that President de Gaulle plans to settle the cold war by himself and grab leadership of the non-Communist world from the U.S.

His action in thwarting Britain's Common Market plans and thus disrupting President Kennedy's vision of a vast "free world" trading community is believed to be more than a mere Napoleonic gesture.

There are reports that he intends to wreck NATO, get the Americans out of Europe, and arrange a settlement with Khrushchev.

Observers here feel that de Gaulle, with his 19th century mind, thinks he is the only Western statesman who can see beyond the cold war—which he dismisses as a passing moment in history—to the troubles ahead.

Card Game Analogy

General Plays For High Stakes

By ALAN HARVEY
From London

In bars and bistros across France, comfortably well-fed men with a cold cigarette clamped in their jaws and perched glasses conveniently within elbow range sit hunched round zinc tables, dedicated with quiet passion to a game of cards.

The name of the game is la belote, and it is practically France's national pastime. It is played with fanatical devotion, employing a 32-card deck, and it tosses conventional rules out of the window.

The trump suit, for instance, is headed by the jack, with the nine next and then ace and king. The non-trump suits restore primacy to the ace, but the 10 is next, ahead of king and queen.

Today, as ordinary Frenchmen deal the cards for another round of la belote, the man to whom they have entrusted their destinies plays a different game for higher stakes.

Olympian as ever, French President de Gaulle is engaged in an international poker session, with President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan among the players ranged against him. De Gaulle says no to Britain getting into Europe, no to Kennedy's "grand design" for the West.

A French newspaper brought up the card-game analogy. Said Paris-Press:

"The mere fact that in January, 1963, the head of the French state should be able to play poker with the masters of the world is an achievement in itself."

In the bars and bistros, many of the belote players probably nodded their heads. Prickly chauvinism is a rooted French quality, and it must have titillated Gaulle pride to realize that a country still suffering from the humiliating memory of 1940 should be back in the big league again.

Thus, apart from left-wing intellectual circles there is unlikely to be much opposition within France. The new mood partakes of a certain euphoria. The economic defeatism of the early post-war years has given way to talk of the "French miracle," and the magazine Paris-Match speaks lyrically of a new "belle époque" reminiscent of the gay days before the First World War.

Paris-Match's optimistic picture is in contrast with that stressed by left-wing weeklies such as L'Express and France-Observateur, which say France is being run for the benefit of the big financial interests and industrial cartels. Despite the favorable balance of payments position, they say there is much hidden poverty, along with gross neglect of schools, hospitals and public transport.

Whatever the social bias, France's economic strength is evident. It is an important part of de Gaulle's confidence as he plays his lonely poker hand in pursuit of a narrow, nationalistic Europe.

In his memoirs, de Gaulle writes that the "effacement" of France was the "basic aim of American policy. So his main aim now is to make sure that France can always "disappear" of her own free will, free from American domination and from any "Anglo-Saxon" alliance in which Britain might be little more than an American agent.

De Gaulle's distrust of Anglo-Saxons seems unreasonable—especially to Anglo-Saxons. It is nevertheless a fact, rooted in a certain view of history and of France's place in the world. Similarly a stranger bred on bridge, blundering into a session of la belote, would find it hard to accept that a nine can beat an ace. But that's the way they play in France.

City Queen Warms to Cold Quebec

6 Daily Colonist, Victoria, B.C., Thurs., Jan. 31, 1963

By MIKE GAINBY

A Victoria girl has returned home following a whirlwind weekend as queen of the annual winter carnival of the Royal Military College in St. Jean, Que.

Christine Johnson, 16, of 716 Craigflower, was chosen queen of the carnival through a photograph submitted by a friend, Rod Sward, 223 Fortshaw, a cadet at the school. Christine, who had never been east before, said she was impressed by the low temperatures, great amounts of snow and the friendliness of the people in Quebec.

Christine was flown to Montreal, of which St. Jean is a suburb, by TCA jet. "I got to Montreal Friday morning," she said. "The first thing I noticed was how friendly everyone was and how pretty the girls there are."

"There was an informal sock hop at the carnival Friday night and the winter sports started the next day," she said. "I was going to take part in some of the sports, but I got so cold I had to go inside. I was looking forward to Victoria's warm weather but it was almost as bad here when I got back," she said. "I was really impressed by the ice sculptures," she said. "They must have spent days getting them ready for the carnival. Some of them were huge and very intricately carved."

Christine returned to Victoria Sunday, after her short reign on a long weekend she will never forget.

Surgery Saves Boy's Finger

Three 16-year-old boys were admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday night when their car failed to negotiate a curve on Sooke Lake Road one-quarter of a mile from the Island Highway and crashed into nearby trees.

Robert Richardson, 2821 Sooke, driver of the car, is in good condition following surgery which saved an almost-lost finger. Glen Galbraith of Glen Lake and Alan Young, 2878 Sooke, head injuries. Young suffered Road. passengers in the car are in good condition. Galbraith is being treated for suspected police said.

Big Gun for Belmont

Speaking Briefly

Alouettes Fire Perry Moss

MONTREAL (CP)—Perry Moss Wednesday left his job as general manager and coach of Montreal Alouettes in the same way he has lived here for three football seasons—chin deep in controversy.

Ted Workman, owner and president of the Eastern Football Conference club, said Moss tendered his resignation at a special meeting of the board of directors and that it was accepted "with regret."

Moss, 36, made it clear he was fired. He said:

"As a coach I knew that some day I would be fired. I just didn't know the day. I guess this is it."

Both men refused to say outright why the sudden turn of events, except that it involved policy differences.

Best speculation based on careful statements by both is that Workman wanted Moss to give up his coaching duties and concentrate solely on managerial affairs, but that Moss refused.

SEEMED SETTLED

Moss said it had appeared to him that the differences had been ironed out at a meeting with Workman last Thursday night.

However, he said, the board of directors, of which he was a member, had met last Friday and "made up their mind then."

"I was not aware of such a move," he said.

He said he had not gone to Wednesday's directors' meeting with the intention of resigning. Moss said the differences over policy involved "things which deviate with what we have been doing in the past . . . problems of authority."

Speaking to reporters, Workman said that when Moss came to Alouettes from Florida State University in 1960, succeeding coach Peasehead Walker, Montreal then needed one man in both jobs of general manager and coach.

"Now, the situation is different," Workman said. "I think the team would be better now with a coach and a general manager."

BILL VEECK has been rejected in his bid to return to major league baseball as part of a syndicate bidding for the Washington Senators. The new head of the club is James M. Johnston, an investment banker, who is one of a three-man group which bought stock owned by Elwood R. Quesada. Randy Kathleen Gallinger, 11-year-old daughter of Don Gallinger, one-time National Hockey League player who has been under suspension since 1948, died Tuesday night in Toronto of cancer. . . . Don Drysdale yesterday earned the distinction of becoming the highest-paid pitcher in club history when he signed a contract with Los Angeles Dodgers reportedly worth $45,000. . . . Rob Cleroux, Canadian heavyweight champion, may get a world title fight this summer with Sonny Liston.

BERNIE GOFFERION of Montreal Canadiens is not only ready to play again after missing four weeks because of a wrist injury but says he may appear, as a singer, on Ed Sullivan's program. . . . Brian London, English heavyweight, is seeking permission from the English Boxing Board of Control to go to Los Angeles to fight Cassius Clay. . . . Scotland's soccer season has been extended to May 4 to help clubs clear up their backlog of games caused by numerous postponements. The English season has been extended by two weeks. . . . Andy Bathgate, fensive halfback Johnny Groves and Pete Farlinger, Torontonians who have played three years at Michigan Tech. . . . Ottawa Rough Riders have clarified, and signed, Roger Kramer, a 289-pound tackle who played last year for Montreal Alouettes. . . . Don Dickson, an all-conference lineman from Mississippi, has been signed by Saskatchewan Roughriders.

SAN DIEGO CHARGERS

FAN FARE

By Walt Ditzgen

Track and field in Canada, which has been showing signs of growing up as a spectator sport the last couple of years, reached maturity last weekend in a space of just 24 hours. The reasons: Money, promotion.

Canadian fans, who usually are looking the other way when track meets are held, turned out nearly 20,000 strong for indoor meets at Toronto and Winnipeg last Friday and Saturday nights. One track official, closely connected with the game for more than 50 years, could hardly believe it.

A crowd of 12,625 was lured to Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto in a meet sponsored by The Telegram and Gardens. Another 7,000 were in the seats at the Winnipeg Auditorium for the annual Royal Canadian Legion meet.

"I can't recall anything approaching this in my experience, even during the late 1920s and 1930s when track and field was a popular sport in Canada," says Jack Davies of Montreal.

Davies, president of the British Empire Games Association of Canada, has practically made track and field his life since the pre-First World War years, first as a competitor and then as an official.

His sentiments were echoed by Jim Worrall of Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic Association and a former track star.

Officials of the almost-broke Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, governing body of the sport in the country, go right along with Davies and Worrall.

"The success of the Toronto and Winnipeg meets point up two big things," says Ken Twigg of Toronto, national chairman of the AAU's track and field committee. "Money is needed to get athletes from other countries and various parts of Canada to our meets and money is needed to promote them."

"The AAU, with only limited resources, can't do it alone. This has been proven for years. Now, we've proven that sports fans, made fully aware of what is going on, will support track."

GAMES BIG BOOST Davies, who maintains the sport received its biggest shot following the 1954 British Empire Games in Vancouver, says "the public now is awake to the fact that we in this country have the material."

"Now, we must try to keep on building up an atmosphere in which more youngsters will be encouraged to take up track and field and will get public support. . . . The 1954 Games helped to bring about a different attitude in the country. The press and the public are encouraging our athletes, rather than ridiculing them."

Shamrocks Solidly Behind Nanaimo As Mainland Clubs Push for Ouster

By JIM TAYLOR

Mainland teams are trying to squeeze Nanaimo right out of the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

Spearheaded by New Westminster, mainland factions are gunning for a four-team league made up of Vancouver, New Westminster, Burnaby, Norburns and Victoria Shamrocks. The odds against this plan being successful are long, but the first step was taken Sunday night in Vancouver when Nanaimo was given until Feb. 8 to announce its plans for the season "or face a year's suspension."

GORDON CONFIDENT

League commissioner Tommy Gordon said yesterday the action was taken by the other members of the league because Nanaimo was not represented at an executive meeting, and that he is "confident everything will be all right."

Other sources say differently. According to one report, it was only strenuous objections by Victoria Shamrocks that kept the mainland teams from suspending Nanaimo for one year right at the meeting. Behind the attempt to axe Nanaimo are a series of reports that the up-island club is in bad financial shape and about to lose many of its players. Mainland teams want to go back to the four-team system, and if it comes to a choice between dropping Nanaimo or Norburns, who finished dead last in their first season, they want to keep Norburns.

Nanaimo has already elected its executive for the coming season and is making plans which indicate they fully expect to be included in this year's plans. In this they have the full support of Victoria Shamrocks.

'WE'LL FIGHT

"If the mainland teams want to throw somebody out, let it be Norburns," Shamrock president Buss Morgan said last night. "If they try to boot out Nanaimo, we'll fight."

A call to New Westminster general manager Harry McKnight brought this view of the situation.

"We've told them they have to present a list of the players they will have, and show us that they have constructive plans for the new season," he said. "Norburns have already done that."

ONE VIEW

"Personally I feel that the only answer to building up this league is to solidify and strengthen four teams. A league can stand one weak sister, but not two, and from what I hear about Nanaimo, they won't even be able to beat a good junior club with the team they'll have this year."

"Bobby Allen told me that he is definitely not coming back to Nanaimo. Tommy McVie won't be back either. He's headed either to Victoria or Burnaby, probably Burnaby. If they lose those two, what have they got left? Nothing."

"There is also a report that Jack Bionda will go to Burnaby as playing coach. If Norburns were to get Bionda and McVie, they'd have a real contending club and we'd have a balanced league."

McKnight neglected to mention a few facts:

THE OTHER SIDE

● Victoria's large increase in attendance last year was mainly due to the fact that Shamrocks played 12 games against Nanaimo, and the island rivalry was one of the league's biggest assets.

● A league containing three mainland teams would force Shamrocks to make 15 trips to the mainland every season, and it is travel costs that have been the Shamrocks' biggest cross to bear over the past few seasons.

● Last year Vancouver won the league but averaged only 831 fans per home game. Nanaimo averaged 1,103.

● Norburns won only four games in 32 last year. Nanaimo won 13.

Only two seasons ago, Shamrocks won only twice. Nobody ever suggested the Shamrocks should be thrown out.

Nanaimo president Bill MacFarlane was unavailable for comment last night. But in Nanaimo there were 40 volunteers for 15 executive positions when the club held its elections. That doesn't sound like a club that is dying.

for centre Cec Hoekstra. That forced the Seals to keep him, and Nicholson had dedicated himself to seeing that it stays that way.

He had only 10 goals for his first 30-odd games with the Seals. Since he was notified that he was considered expendable, he's been going at a goal-a-game rate. Last night in Calgary, Nicholson scored the tying and winning goals within 24 seconds during the third period as the Seals came from behind to edge past the Stampede, 5-4. He'll likely be with the Seals when they head back home after Saturday's game in Calgary.

In last night's other game, Portland Buckaroos and Los Angeles Blades played to a 3-3 tie.

Just a Misunderstanding And No Reason for Fuss

NANAIMO—Nanaimo is not about to give up its spot in the Inter-City Lacrosse League but, in fact, is looking ahead to the coming season with a strong team organization already set up.

"I don't know why they're making such a fuss about our failure to send a delegate to the league meeting last Sunday," coach Arnie Dugan said. "There was just a slight misunderstanding."

To make it clear that the Nanaimo club is planning to continue, a meeting was held Monday night at which the club elected its officers.

"I was impressed with the turnout," Dugan said. "We have some solid citizens and businessmen on our board of directors."

Bill McFarlane was re-elected club president and Ted Long, Bob Giles and Fred Dawson named to the board of directors. Giles and Gene Koster will represent the Nanaimo club at league meetings.

Among the first problems facing the new directorate is the selection of a manager and coach. Jack Sherry resigned as manager after last season and there has been no announcement about Dugan's status.

"It's up to the executive," Dugan said. "I'll do whatever is felt will help the most."

Faced with the possible loss of Tom McVie and Bobby Allen and with the return of Terry Davis problematical, Dugan said the club would concentrate on Nanaimo talent. He pointed out that a Nanaimo club won the provincial senior "B" championship last year and has at least four good prospects for the ICLL team.

Wayne Osborne was called on a foul and drew two technicals for arguing, giving Chiefs six free throws.

Bob Tomlinson took two free throws and missed both. Up stepped Darrell Lorimer and sank only one of four to make it 60-52 and give the Bakers a chance they almost took to win it all.

With 49 seconds left, Bakers had cut the score to 63-56, and they scored the next three points. But Billy Wilson put on a fine dribbling display to kill off 15 seconds and Chiefs were still in possession when the buzzer sounded.

FOUR SCORED

It was Chiefs' first victory over Bakers in New Westminster and four men did all the scoring. Norris Martin scored 22 points and Lorimer got 20. Wilson added 11 and Tomlinson got the other 10.

But a good measure of the credit for Chiefs' success came on the play of John Devlin, who didn't score a point.

TWO MISSING

Chiefs came to New Westminster without Ken McCulloch and Terry Tobacco, both guards. That left a starting position open for Devlin and he made it pay.

"John's my secret weapon," coach Ken King said before the game. "Over here in this gym he always goes well. You'll see a lot of him to-night."

So did Bakers. Devlin's checking spearheaded a fine Chief defence that simply bottled up Bakers' big men. Ed Wild scored 16 points, but Dave Osborne was held to 11. Wayne Osborne got only six.

Bakers were obviously having an "off" night, both in their shooting and in their floor play.

From now on, the schedule breaks in favor of Chiefs.

TWO HERE

Second game will be played in Victoria's Central Junior High School gym Friday and the third will be played there Saturday.

"We don't want to come back here," King said. "It's a nice place, mind you, but I'd just as soon we finish things off at home. If we play like we did tonight, we can do it."

Chiefs—Wilson M. Devlin—Lorimer 20, Martin 22, Tomlinson 11, Total—63. Bakers—Fletcher 11, Osborne 11, Wild 16, Carter 4, D. Osborne 11, Seely 6, Drummond 4, Farnsworth, Total—59.

Just about every major league club made googoo eyes at Fletcher last June when he completed his sophomore year at the University of Illinois. He had pitched Illinois to the Big Ten championship, compiling a record of eight victories and no defeats with an earned-run average of .40.

The Tigers got him for a reported $74,500 and he joined them in September. He pitched two scoreless innings. The next day his arm hurt. This winter there have been tests at the Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit and the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. The diagnosis: "chronic venous insufficiency."

"That means," Campbell has explained, "that when he uses his arm something prevents free circulation in it. Doctors recommend complete rest."

So, at the age of 20, Fletcher has been assigned to the voluntarily-retired list for a year. The Tigers have paid him $37,250 an inning for his services to date, but maybe he'll come back. And maybe not.

Trouble is, baseball men don't learn from object lessons like this. If they ever did, they wouldn't be eternally adopting, violating, and repeating rules to protect themselves against their own spontaneous generosity.

The examples they look at are those of Robin Roberts and Johnny Antonelli and a few others who have earned back their bonuses many times over.

Everybody Made Eyes

It takes only two or three players of special talent to make a good team from a bad one. Sometimes a single player can make the difference between a loser and a winner. Every body in baseball knows this, and that is why baseball has not been able to come up with a rule that will work to curb the payment of extravagant bonuses to unproved kids.

No matter what penalties are prescribed for spending money foolishly, the clubs still take the risk. They feel they can afford to blow their bets on ten Tom Fletchers if they manage to come up with one Robin Roberts.

The rules now in effect make a bonus player eligible for the draft after one year as a professional. It is a bad rule that won't work. Clubs still pay bonuses, protect the kids they think have real value, and take their chances on losing the others in the draft.

The only difference is that they don't sign so many kids because they can't protect many. With more major league teams in the field than ever before and more jobs open as a result, there ought to be more kids coming into the game. Instead, there has been an appreciable drop in the number of free agents signed.

This is bad for baseball, bad for boys who want to play baseball bad for everybody. Competition for the top boys hasn't slackened, bonuses got bigger rather than smaller, but the wealth is concentrated in fewer hands.

And George Weiss drones on: "Send these, the homeless, tempest-tossed, to me: I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

THE PALMER METHOD

USE THE RIGHT SIDE TO FULL ADVANTAGE

If your shots are lacking distance, it may be that you're not putting your right side to its best use. Turn well away from the ball in the backswing and get those hands up high (see illustration #1).

At finish, your hips must reverse the backswing turn (see illustration #2) and must always face the target. The tip-off is the action of the right leg here, as the knee bends toward the target in the correct finish.

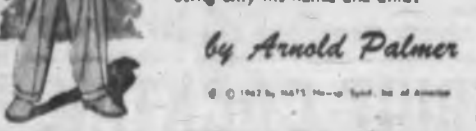

Illustration #3 shows a completely deactivated right side. The golfer's legs are both stiff and his hips have not pivoted at all toward the target. He has made a poor swing, almost using only his hands and arms.

Golf's Hot Shots Chasing Leaders

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Golf's four famous-players finished in runners-up roles Wednesday as veteran Gardner Dickinson and unheralded Harry Kneese led the parade through the first round of the $50,000 Palm Springs classic with a pair of 65s.

The slender, 35-year-old Dickinson who closed out the 1962 tournament season by winning the Coral Gables Open, shot a 31-35 on the par 36-73 Eldorado Country Club course, re-gained as the most difficult of the four clubs in play.

Kneese, 27, a two-year newcomer on the tournament circuit, got his 65 with a 34-32 over the easier par 36-71 Indian Wells Country Club.

Old stroke back were South Africa's Gary Player, the money-winning leader of the tour to date, with a 34-33 and Bob Shave Jr., 33-34, both playing the Indian Wells course.

U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus finished with 35-34-69 and Arnold Palmer, Mr. Big of golf, had a 37-34-71. Both were playing at Indian Wells.

Jack Burke Jr., fresh from his triumph in the San Francisco International Open, took a 73 at Eldorado, while old Sam Snead, ending his winter hibernation, had a 35-37-72 at Indian Wells and complained that he couldn't sink a putt from "farther than three feet."

Tied at 48 in the first round of this 90-hole marathon were Bo Wininger, Jay Hill, Tommy Aaron and Pat Schwab.

The 63 bracket was jammed with eight players, notably Nicklaus, Jimmy Demaret, Jay Herbert and Tommy Bolt. Billy Casper Jr., Gene Littler, Cary Middlecott and Australia's Bruce Crampton were among those in the swollen 70s.

Two Canadian pros are competing. Stan Leonard of Vancouver, shot 35-38-73 and Al Baiding of Toronto had 37-40-77. Montreal's Al Johnston did not start because of a sore back.

Ridan, with veteran jockey Steve Brooks riding, beat George D. Widener's Jaipur, at the same weight with John Sellers up, by 3 1/4 lengths.

H. O. H. Frelinghuysen's Merry Ruber was third and Bohemia Stable's Kelso, Horse of the Year in 1960, '61 and '62, finished fourth.

Ridan, making his second start this month, ran the seven furlongs in one minute 22.4 seconds and paid $3.40, $2.50 and $2.10 across the board.

Playoff Prospects Diminish For New York's Blueshirts

It's all but down to a battle for playoff position in the National Hockey League.

New York Rangers, the only one of the two lagging clubs with any kind of a chance to play for the Stanley Cup, were left with little more than holding off Boston Bruins for fifth place after taking a 6-1 beating from Detroit Red Wings in New York last night.

Not only are the Rangers 16 points behind the fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks, they have gained only five points from their last nine games and goalkeeper Lorne Worsley has been the most-deserted player in the game of late.

Worsley was earning his wages again last night as the Wings leveled 56 shots at him. In his last four games, Worsley has had to pick the puck out of the net 15 times but has yielded grudgingly, making no less than 193 stops.

Making last night's defeat just that much harder to take was the fact that Parker MacDonald, a winger the Rangers thought expendable, got his 22nd and 23rd goals of the season just over two minutes apart in the second period after the Rangers had pulled into a 1-1 tie.

Gordie Howe, who seems determined to break Maurice

Richard's all-time goal-scoring record before the season is out, also chipped in with two goals and set up MacDonald for one.

It left Howe with 24 goals for the season and 526 for his career. He needs 19 more to break Richard's record of 544, and has 24 games in which to do it.

Howe got his goals in typical fashion, stealing the puck away from Andy Bathgate and Albert Langlois in the Ranger zone before beating Worsley. His assist gave Howe 49 points for the season, only one fewer than the total of co-leaders John Bucyk and Frank Mahovlich.

Rangers came out of the game with a minor, although satisfying decision. Andy Bathgate, who usually never starts anything, took umbrage at some roughing handed out by Howe Young, peeled off his gloves and landed several solid clouts before they were separated.

Young had nine minutes added to his penalty total, which now adds up to 163 minutes and makes him all but a cinch for a new record.

MCC Gains Draw

ADELAIDE (Reuters)—England's cricketers recovered from early setbacks Wednesday to draw with Australia in the fourth Test Match.

The stage now is set for a grand finale to the series with the sides level with one win each and two draws.

Australia set England to get 356 to win in four hours Wednesday — and then grabbed the wickets of England openers David Sheppard and Geoff Pullar with only four runs on the board.

But Ken Barrington and Colin Cowdrey steadied England with a third wicket stand of 94. Barrington went on to score his first century against Australia, and when time expired England was 233 for four with Barrington 132 not out.

Richie Benaud, the Australian captain, adopted a cautious approach to the match Wednesday. Standing 267 runs ahead with four second-innings wickets in hand Wednesday, he and the other Australian batsmen concentrated on denying England time.

Australia finally was retired for 253 and England was left to score at over 80 an hour to win.

First Round For Sailors

RCN Golf Association's first monthly medal round for 1963 will be held today at Gorge Vale Golf Club. The starting times

10:30—Charles, Shogler, Vollett, Monaghan, 13:00—Nagami, Pumphrey, Marne, P. 13:15—Larson, Clark, McNamee, Duran 13:30—Andrew, Alexander, Cor, La 13:45—Chatterlain, Wyner, Bae, Car 13:55—Morton, Lundy, Michael, Tancil 14:10—McDougal, Trim, McLaughlin 14:25—Connelly, Peterson, Porter, Musk 14:40—Powers, Mackay.

Tied at 48 in the first round of this 90-hole marathon were Bo Wininger, Jay Hill, Tommy Aaron and Pat Schwab.

The 63 bracket was jammed with eight players, notably Nicklaus, Jimmy Demaret, Jay Herbert and Tommy Bolt. Billy Casper Jr., Gene Littler, Cary Middlecott and Australia's Bruce Crampton were among those in the swollen 70s.

Two Canadian pros are competing. Stan Leonard of Vancouver, shot 35-38-73 and Al Baiding of Toronto had 37-40-77. Montreal's Al Johnston did not start because of a sore back.

Ridan, with veteran jockey Steve Brooks riding, beat George D. Widener's Jaipur, at the same weight with John Sellers up, by 3 1/4 lengths.

H. O. H. Frelinghuysen's Merry Ruber was third and Bohemia Stable's Kelso, Horse of the Year in 1960, '61 and '62, finished fourth.

Ridan, making his second start this month, ran the seven furlongs in one minute 22.4 seconds and paid $3.40, $2.50 and $2.10 across the board.

Queen Leaves Today

Royal Tour Fuss Down to Minimum

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip leave today for a tour of Fiji, New Zealand and Australia in which the fuss and feathers traditionally associated with royal tours will be slashed to a minimum.

Many informal engagements will let the royal visitors see ordinary citizens at work and play, amid the heavy round of state welcomes, banquets and inaugurations.

SHARP REDUCTION

Buckingham Palace spokesmen said Wednesday night there has been a sharp reduction in the number of full-dress formal presentations, garden parties and official functions since the Queen and her husband last visited New Zealand and Australia in 1954.

Philip alone visited both countries in 1956 and was in Australia last November.

10,000-MILE TRIP

The 1963 royal tour begins today at 10 a.m. (2 a.m. PDT) when the royal couple depart on a 10,000-mile flight to Fiji in the South Pacific, arriving there on the evening of Feb. 1.

The Queen and Philip last visited Fiji in 1953.

The Queen's BOAC Boeing-707 jetliner will make short refuelling calls at Vancouver, arriving there at 2:55 p.m. EST today and Honolulu.

At Fiji the royal yacht Britannia awaits the Queen and the Prince, who will wake the morning of Feb. 2 in beautiful Suva Bay where a Fijian chief will invite them ashore for elaborate welcoming rites.

Then they sail for Waitangi, New Zealand, aboard the Britannia, arriving there Feb. 6.

After flying from Christchurch, New Zealand, to Canberra, Australia, Feb. 18, the Queen and Philip will also spend seven nights during their 38-day Australian visit at sea, mostly sailing from one city to another.

The royal visit ends in Perth March 27 when the Queen and Philip fly across the Pacific to Fiji and Vancouver, then across Canada and the Atlantic to London.

Senators Defend Delegation

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Conservative senators denied Wednesday that members of the Canadian delegation to the NATO parliamentarians' conference in Paris last November spent their nights in night clubs and slept by day.

Senators John Hnatyshyn of Saskatoon and Walter Aseltine of Rosetown, Sask., were commenting on a Nov. 28 report in Montreal La Presse stating that certain members of the delegation spent most of their time in the garish entertainment district of Place Pigalle.

Senator Hnatyshyn, a member of the delegation, said "in spite of what has been said to the contrary I would like to state that the delegation did its work well."

"Everybody, as far as I am concerned, worked hard. I personally was proud to be a member of the delegation."

Meetings Today

St. John Ambulance, Victoria branch, will hold its 50th annual general meeting at 8 p.m. today at Victoria branch headquarters, 941 Pandora.

The individual citizen's responsibility for preserving the free-enterprise system will be topic of a panel discussion at a morning meeting of the St. Beaver Kiwanis Club at 7:30 a.m. at the Tally-Ho Traveldodge.

Panelists will be John Wallace, Victoria Chamber of Commerce president; Hugh Stephen, chairman of the YMCA building fund drive, and Justin Harbord, chairman of the 1962 United Appeal. Moderator will be Victoria radio commentator Dick Batey.

Best bells will be discussed by W. J. Williams at a meeting of the Victoria Rotary Club at 12:10 p.m. at the Empress.

Topic for members of the Victoria Optimist Club at 12:10 p.m. at the fifth floor, Yarrow Building, is the Victoria Safety Council.

A U.S. government film on recent space orbit, The Mastery of Space, will be shown at a meeting of the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club at 6:15 p.m. at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Mrs. Dorothy Abraham, authority on Vancouver Island history, will speak to the Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society at 8 p.m. at the War Amputees' Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue.

Bank Error Blown On Spur of Moment

TORONTO (UPI) — Paul Broda, 46, who went to a bank to close his account and got $1,655 from another Broda's account instead of his own 80 cents, was given a suspended sentence Wednesday because he "acted on the spur of the moment."

Horse race bets took most of the money; Broda got a year to make restitution.

Heartbeat Charted by Phone

SASKATOON (CP) — The heartbeat of a hospital patient in Biggar, 60 miles west of here, was charted on an electrocardiogram in a Saskatoon hospital Wednesday by telephone with "100 per cent success."

Doctors at St. Paul's Hospital said the transmission of the sending part of the new heart beat patterns over long distance telephone line was converted to electrical impulses new here and "of special significance" in Saskatchewan where communication is by telephone line rather than by microwave.

A cardiogram was taken of the patient at Biggar and was converted to soundwaves by

Kiernan Fears Export Loss In Union Fight

By TERRY HAMMOND

Colonial Legislative Reporter

Mines Minister Kiernan told the House yesterday he fears B.C.'s mineral export markets could be jeopardized if a smouldering union jurisdictional dispute bursts into flames.

It was believed he was referring to Craigmont Mines where there have been indications the United Steelworkers may try to oust the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers as bargaining agent for more than 200 workers.

Mr. Kiernan's warning brought cries of "shame" from opposition benches, and opposition leader Strachan said Mr. Kiernan was indulging in just the type of political tactics which Attorney-General Bonner deplored in a speech a day earlier.

The mines minister said this "dark cloud" over the bright picture of B.C.'s burgeoning mining industry could not only idle the mines and the men that work them, but also cost B.C. its export markets through abrogation of delivery contracts.

NO MONOPOLY
"We have no monopoly on our markets—people are not rushing frantically to buy our ore."

Mr. Kiernan appealed to all parties to use whatever influence they could to stave off the dispute.

Mr. Strachan said: "I think you are doing the kind of damage to this province that the attorney-general asked us not to do."

"You are doing damage to this province right now," Mr. Kiernan said he sounded the warning out of a sense of duty and in the belief "that some of those involved don't seem to realize what they are letting themselves in for."

"It's an appeal for goodwill," interjected the premier.

Extensive Road Work Esquimalt MLA's Plea

By DON MATHESON

Esquimalt Social Credit member Herbert Bruch last night asked the government for an "extensive secondary road program" in his constituency.

Mr. Bruch said in the legislature he was happy to hear of tolls coming off bridges on the mainland and in the Okanagan, but Islanders still had to pay ferry tolls.

In the road program, he asked for:

• Better access roads to Victoria.

'Let Public Decide'

Works Minister Chant suggested Wednesday all newspapers publish the speech from the Throne read at the opening of the legislature.

This would give the public a chance to judge the speech for itself instead of having to read some "biased interpretations of parts of it."

Mr. Chant said the 2,500-word speech documented the success of government.

Party Heads Together

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault was astonished when he saw this sight in the legislature Wednesday night.

Premier Bennett and Opposition Leader Robert Strachan were sitting side-by-side in cabinet chairs on the Social Credit side of the house, while business went on.

Mr. Strachan made the trip to show the premier that his notes contained an explanation of a disputed point.

The meeting drew this comment from Mr. Perrault, under almost constant fire in the legislature these days.

"They're plotting tomorrow's attack on the Liberals," he laughed.

MLA 'Disowned'

Premier Bennett has disowned Social Credit member Stanley Carnell's remarks in the House that people on social welfare should lose their right to vote.

Frank Calder (NDP-Atlin) has just begun to criticize the South Peace River member's remarks when Premier Bennett stood up and declared: "I want to make clear that (taking away the franchise) is not government policy."

Yesterday in the House

I'm Broke—MLA

B.C.'s only Indian MLA—Frank Calder from Atlin—shot an arrow to the seat of finance as far as the other MLAs were concerned.

He struck their tender pocketbooks.

NOT AFRAID

"Quite a lot of the members are afraid to speak but I'm not... I'm broke and the situation has become embarrassing," he said.

Only his "sympathetic banker" and a finance house credit card got him to Victoria on time, he said.

Otherwise, he would "still be paddling my way to Victoria." He also knew of other members visiting their bankers.

Members were often seen in the corridors, whispering while they canvassed opinion on increased indemnities.

"The result?" Mr. Calder asked.

"Before the session is up everyone is in favor of an increase except the premier."

Members receive $5,000 yearly. Premier Bennett receives $15,000.

Even cabinet ministers joined in the all-party desk-thumping that followed Mr. Calder's plea.

W. K. Jefeot (S.C.—Salmon Arm) has seen his only promise of the last provincial election campaign fulfilled.

He told the legislature he was informed that a liquor store will be put in Chase in mid-April.

"I would rather fight for anything else—but that's progress," said the non-drinking member who mentioned it was his only promise.

Progress for the native Indian requires more emphasis on social and economic status, says Frank Calder.

After specific improvements in the two fields, then "substantial results" would show in education, religion, health and welfare, he told the legislature.

He recommended establishment of Indian centres in centrally-located cities to promote and encourage social relationships, employment and research in economic development and social organization.

SELF-GOVERNMENT

He also called for an amendment to the Indian Act to provide complete self-government on reserves.

And he asked the government to consider selecting and giving RCMP training to young, qualified Indians to police Indian reservations which have approved liquor consumption within their bounds.

Temporary refuge with generous neighbors is given Mr. and Mrs. Knud Poulsen who lost their home at 4254 Prospect Lake Road in a swift fire Wednesday. Shirley, 14, with her father, was at hospital for new leg cast when fire occurred. Paul, 10, with pup Scampy, discovered fire in roof and warned his mother, here holding her grandson, Kevin Mazarolle, 11 months. Daughter Betty, 17, was at school, and daughter Helen Mazarolle was at work.—(Bud Kinsman)

Man Shot in Leg Woman Charged

A woman has been charged with assault in connection with a shooting incident that took place yesterday afternoon in a home on Sooke Road.

She is scheduled to appear in magistrate's court this morning on a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Police said Donald Brazeau of Sooke Road was wounded in the leg when a .38 pistol was discharged. He was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released.

Chilled Robins Fly to Victoria By Thousands

The robin population of the Victoria area has been increased by thousands in the past few days because of the recent cold snap.

Massive flights of robins have been noticed in this area recently. Charles Guiguet, provincial government research officer, said Wednesday.

ARBUTUS AREA

A flight of "something like 10,000" was reported recently in the Arbutus Road area, he said.

Mr. Guiguet said the robins apparently came to the island anticipating even colder weather on the B.C. lower mainland, where they were spending the winter.

He said the robin movement to Victoria was not a migration in the normal sense of the word, but one of the complex local movements of birds which are going on all the time.

Victoria has a year-round robin population with some of the birds spending the winter here, he said.

PINTAIL DUCKS

In what is apparently another local movement, larger than usual numbers of pintail ducks have been showing up in the Victoria area recently, he said.

Despite the cold weather, Mr. Guiguet said, some varieties of birds are making their preparations for spring on schedule.

Waterfowl are courting, house finches are beginning to sing and house sparrows are beginning work on their nests. A. R. Davidson, 825 Montrose, a member of the Victoria Natural History Society, reports he spotted two palm warblers, normally found only east of the Rockies, near Sidney this month.

PEACE RIVER

He said birds of this species have never been seen on Vancouver Island before and are usually found in B.C. only in the Peace River country where there is not the high Rockies barrier to keep them out.

He said the natural history society's annual Christmas bird count Dec. 22 turned up 44,146 birds of 121 species within a Victoria-area circle of 7½ miles radius.

Included were 3,929 American widgeon, 3,284 mallards and 10 bald eagles, he said.

Club Show Sold Out

Friday's and Saturday's performances of A Midsummer Night's Dream by the Victoria College Players Club are sold out, a club spokesman said Wednesday.

Fire Minor

Fire burned a section of wall at the home of J. C. Chaloner, 641 Kelly in Colwood, last night. The blaze was contained to within two feet of the starting place.

By DON GAIN

A family of seven was made homeless when fire gutted a Prospect Lake home shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Knud Poulsen, 4254 Prospect Lake Road, their four children and a grandchild, spent the night at a motel, after accommodation arrangements were made by the Saanich welfare department.

Mrs. Charles Newman, 4167 Prospect Lake Road, brought food for the family.

The five-room Poulsen residence was gutted by a fire which apparently started in the attic or roof.

Mrs. Poulsen, her 10-year-old son, Paul, and her 11-month-old grandson, Kevin Mazarolle, were home when the fire started.

AT HOSPITAL

Her husband was at Royal Jubilee Hospital where a 14-year-old daughter, Shirley, was having a new cast put on a leg broken three weeks ago. A daughter, Mrs. Helen Mazarolle, 20, was at her job at Work Point, and another daughter, Betty, 17, was in school.

Paul Poulsen heard "a crackling sound" in the living room and ran into the kitchen shouting. "There's a fire, Mum."

Mrs. Poulsen said she ran from the house and "saw heavy, black smoke pouring from the roof."

"I went back into the house and told Paul to take the baby and the dog across the road to the neighbors."

"I tried to get the fire department, but the line was busy. I went into a bedroom and got the bed clothes from one bed. Then I put some water on the fire in the fireplace," she said.

ALL ABLAZE

"I tried again to get the fire department, and got through that time. But the whole house was blazing in about five or six minutes."

Three Saanich fire trucks responded to the call and used up 2,300 gallons of water. They also used water from a pond on the Poulsen property.

Mr. Poulsen returned from hospital to find his home a burnt-out shambles. While he inspected the once-attractive paneled living room and other parts of the house now open to the sky, a big-pawed family pet called Scampy scampered around to get the attention of the children.

Mr. Poulsen is employed as a carpenter at the new Mayfair shopping centre on Douglas Street. Mrs. Mazarolle's husband is with the Royal Canadian Engineers at Chilliwack.

Keep UBC Link—MLA

Don't Imperil Degree

By TERRY HAMMOND

B.C. will sell short the sheepskins of Victoria University students if it removes from them the world-renowned imprint of the University of British Columbia, the legislature was told last night.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby) said the community spirit behind the move to establish the University of Victoria was admirable and understandable but also regrettable.

SAME PROBLEM

He said UBC had taken more than half a century to establish world-wide respect for its degrees and that a University of Victoria will face the same problem.

The government announced in the throne speech it would place a bill before the house officially creating Victoria University as a degree-granting institution.

"Why give it a new name when it has an old one?" asked Mr. Dowding, referring to Victoria College.

He said the government

shouldn't heed the chamber of commerce and local groups interested in the commercial aspects of the new status but should have regard for the future of the graduates.

Graduates will be asked what university they graduated from, said Mr. Dowding, and when they reply "University of Victoria" the answer will be "never heard of it."

IN AUSTRALIA

"There isn't a University of Vancouver, why should there be a University of Victoria?" he asked.

"You are depriving youth of the respect for their degrees they would retain if linked with UBC."

"Some people will think it's in Australia."

Mr. Dowding suggested it be titled "Victoria College of the University of British Columbia" just as Balliol and Christ Colleges are part of Oxford.

SOON KNOWN

Education Minister Leslie Peterson said it was the students who want the new status and asked Mr. Dowding if he wanted UBC degrees granted at the proposed degree-granting Burnaby college.

"I think it would be best," said the Burnaby member.

Later, Herbert Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) said he felt the name Victoria University was sufficient and would soon be well known.

What was needed was more opportunity for graduates to make a name here rather than going away to make themselves known.

WIDER USE

What he would also like to see, he said, was more, complete use of schools.

"The whole community pays for them, the whole community should use them, rather than have them in operation for just a few hours a day."

'Chance To Lead Country'

Victoria has a chance to establish a position "10 years ahead of the rest of Canada" if approval is given to a new nursing home and old people's residential development, according to a brief received at city hall yesterday.

The two-stage development is proposed for a 3-acre site on Fairfield Road. First to be constructed would be a 75-bed nursing home, followed by three residential pavilions and a recreational centre.

BUILT BY 1964

The developers said they hoped to complete the entire project by the summer of 1964.

The Glengarry Village plan was conceived by David Hummel and F. M. P. Warren, both city lawyers, and William E. Oland, administrator of a local private hospital.

RECONSIDERED

Their initial application for rezoning of 17 lots on the site which is now zoned for single family dwellings was turned down by the advisory planning commission. But city council asked for the application to be reconsidered.

The brief said: "The term private hospital is a misnomer for in no sense is a private hospital a hospital at all. It is merely what is known throughout the rest of the world as a nursing home."

"In fact, this whole development is a residential development in keeping with the residential character of the area."

Speakers in the legislature today will be Education Minister Leslie Peterson, Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver), Cyril Shefford (BC—Omineca), and Mrs. Margaret Hobbs (NDP—Revelstoke.)

Talents of All Victorians Asked for Civic Centre

Saanich horticulturalist Attilio Rando has called for a community-wide volunteer effort by citizens of Greater Victoria to contribute time, work or money to development of the city's centennial civic centre.

"Victoria is our town," he said. "To many of us this town has been very good; to many very lavish. When you go all around, be proud to say you are a Victorian."

UNION MEN

"To those who come to visit us, let them see what Victorians can do. Work so all can see what we can accomplish when we can put our efforts together."

"To union men, this is their town, too. Can they donate some of their time to make easy the artistic details that go with work of such magnitude?"

AND FACTORIES

"Among us there are factories of a very high standard. This town has been good to them, too. Can they donate some of the material? Can they let their workers use their machinery free for such a cause during weekends?"

"To those who have money: can they indulge in a little more giving while they are alive?"

PRODUCTION SKILL

"If you have any production skill that can be made of use, can you offer it to your own town?"

Mr. Rando paid tribute to Mayor Wilson and members of city council and the city's planning staff headed by architect Rod Clark for development of the concept of the civic centre.

By JACK FRY

Executive members of the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association, angered by reports that Saanich council may call public hearings for high-rise and garden apartment rezoning in the area, held an emergency meeting last night to plot a course of opposition.

A spokesman for the group declined to say what action will be taken.

However, there was talk recently of a movement towards secession from Saanich and joining the municipality of Oak Bay. Reeve Stanley Murphy said at that time the rest of the taxpayers would vote down any such bid.

INJUNCTION

An association member also recalled that an injunction had been obtained when Saanich council wanted to permit development of Gordon Head airport a number of years ago, on the site where Victoria University is now being built.

No suggestion was made that injunctions "might be sought against two garden apartment applicants and one high-rise apartment applicant if council permits the rezoning."

SHOWDOWN

It seems that the long-awaited showdown between the taxpayers of that area and Saanich council is about to take place.

Mrs. Margot Bowden, president of the 150-member ratepayers group, said her telephone was "ringing all day" because of people who wanted to join the association in its fight.

STALEMATE BROKEN

The stalemate which developed during the past year over whether Cadboro Bay would remain exclusively a residential area for single family dwellings was broken Tuesday, when Saanich lands and planning committee recommended that council should call the rezoning hearings.

In a statement issued after last night's executive meeting, the spokesman listed several main points about which the association is objecting.

OPPOSED

"We are against spot rezoning in a district which is a well-established residential district presently zoned for single family residence," he said.

"This area was developed by individual ratepayers who would like to retain it as it now exists."

'DOUBLE-CROSS'

"The sewer bylaw of 1960 was backed by this ratepayers group, who were asked to do so by Saanich council in relation to retention of single family zoning," the spokesman said.

"The present council, ignoring this fact, are to put it mildly, double-crossing all the ratepayers in this district."

He said that the council would receive co-operation of the ratepayers, if zoning is carried out "to improve single family residential restrictions rather than to go off the deep end and rezone for an entirely different type of building which is foreign to this district."

"In fact, this whole development is a residential development in keeping with the residential character of the area."

Meanwhile Coun. Harold Todd, who along with Coun. Leslie Pasmore, had opposed the holding of any garden apartment hearing, came out in strong support of the ratepayers' association. He had no comment on the matter of high-rise apartments.

He said he believed that the council "has a moral obligation" to the ratepayers because of their support for the 1962 sewer bylaw, "and should not tamper with the zoning."

'NO HARM'

"In the planner's report of May 1962, it is pointed out that no harm will come to the area if apartments are not allowed," said Coun. Todd.

Considering the strong opposition, council's moral obligation that no harm will come from present zoning, "I sincerely hope council will not rezone for garden apartments, and as a councillor I will oppose this step," he said.

Present at the meeting were delegates from Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Greater Victoria School Board and the Saanich rural area, School District 63, and the welfare council.

Area Board, Jr.

Project Slips Notch

Ignored by Saanich and sidestepped by Oak Bay and Esquimalt in its attempts to form a Greater Victoria recreation commission, Victoria will likely have to settle for a junior inter-municipal committee.

This became obvious last night at a meeting of the "steering" committee formed at the city's request to consider formation of an overall recreation commission as suggested by the Greater Victoria Community Welfare Council in 1962.

Saanich never appointed a representative to the steering committee and both Oak Bay and Esquimalt have their own recreation commissions and plan to retain them.

COORDINATION

At the end of last night's meeting, Coun. D. H. Nelson of Esquimalt moved that the committee take steps to form a body to "provide co-ordination among existing municipal recreation authorities."

The motion was approved unanimously. The co-ordinating body, as it was mapped out in discussions before the motion, would be almost identical in form to the existing Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee, which comprises representatives of the four municipalities and who settle matters of common interest, such as financing and construction of the new juvenile detention home.

Both Coun. Nelson and Coun. William Wade of Oak Bay stressed their councils wanted to see what their own recreation commissions could do but were not "closing the door" on the possibility of forming an overall commission.

Delegates to last night's meeting will report back to their civic bodies which will then decide whether or not to agree to form the intermunicipal committee.

Present at the meeting were delegates from Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Greater Victoria School Board and the Saanich rural area, School District 63, and the welfare council.

Maxine Hall was installed as honored queen of Bethel No. 2, Job's Daughters, at a ceremony held in the Kirk Hall recently. At the same time Mary Phelps was installed as princess and Carole Southron as junior princess. —(Chapman Photography)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a first-grade teacher who disagrees with your advice to the mother whose child wet his pants in school. You were highly critical of the teacher because she shamed the youngster before the class.

Your closing statement was "the principal should speak to the teacher. She needs educating—badly."

It is YOU who needs educating badly. A person who has never been a teacher cannot possibly be aware of the problems which beset us daily.

Small children who are too closely tied to their mothers' apron strings sometimes use the wet pants as an excuse to go home. Often they want extra attention and will do anything to get it.

A good teacher knows each of her students and she also knows how to deal best with his particular weakness. In my opinion this teacher used good judgment.—EXPERIENCED.

Dear Experienced: Thank you for the letter. Here is another point of view.

Dear Ann Landers: My heart went out to the little boy who wet his pants in school. Although 40 years have passed since I had a similar experience, I remember it vividly.

It was the first grade, and I was six years old. We were watching a movie of the Johnstown flood—and suddenly I realized I was involved in a flood of my own. We were told to file out and return to the classroom. I was ashamed to leave my seat. The teacher saw me, and seemed hesitantly to know. She told the others to go on ahead. She stayed behind with me.

I was swiftly ushered to the teachers' rest room and was given some dry underwear kept there for "the purpose." She asked me to return the underwear after my mother had laundered it, so it could help some other little boy who "got too excited." Her understanding heart taught me the true meaning of compassion. I shall love that teacher to my dying day.—L. R.

Dear Ann Landers: I suppose you've had this question many times, but it's new to me, although I have raised four girls. My 16-year-old daughter has been going with a boy, 19. He's over here every night after work and she either goes out with him or they sit at home.

The boy buys her clothing and other items every week. He has a good-paying job but I don't approve of this practice. He comes from a poor family and his parents could use some of the money he is lavishing on her.

I've mentioned this to my daughter. Should I talk to the boy's parents?—ST. LOUIS WOMAN.

Dear Woman: The boy's parents have less control over their son than you have over your daughter—which is precious little. Speaking to them would be pointless.

Tell your daughter she may not accept any future gifts other than for a special occasion. Point out to the boy the practicality of saving his money for the future. Make it clear that any other course of action will not be tolerated.

Confidential to Rosa: Tell your father this isn't Italy. A 16-year-old girl should not look like a woman from the knees down.

Confidential to The Cake-eater: Any similarity between your free-loading romance and a real gentleman is purely coincidental. What more do you need—a building to fall on your head?

Crofton Art Group Meet Jan. 31

CROFTON—The Crofton Arts Centre will elect new officers at the general meeting Jan. 31, at the home of Mrs. Rose Hammond of Duncan.

Dates for art shows in 1963 will be set.

President H. W. Swales said his group will in the near future sponsor a travelling exhibition from the Vancouver Art Gallery with water colors and prints. The show will be at the Arts Centre's headquarters, the church hall here.

Following tradition the group will hold a spring show at Duncan and a fall exhibition at Crofton with about 160 pictures by 27 members. Mr. Swales stated renowned art teacher and Canada Grant winner, Arthur Burrell instructs members at Crofton and Duncan.

DAUGHTERS ST. GEORGE

Daughters of St. George No. 23 will meet Friday, Feb. 1, 8 p.m. in the K. of P. Hall.

Basil FitzGibbon that Man in the Kitchen

By BASIL FITZGIBBON

From great many people, Sunday morning is a time of relaxation and a wonderful opportunity to prepare a "brunch" instead of the usual breakfast. It is the one morning that the cook has time to prepare something out of the ordinary and relax.

How about country fresh eggs, poached to a turn, sitting comfortably on a bed of delicious spinach and topped with a tangy cheese sauce. This dish is known as eggs Florentine and here is the recipe:

EGGS FLORENTINE

(For six persons)

Twelve eggs, ¼ cup butter, ½ cup flour, 1 cup milk, 1 cup cream, 1½ lbs. spinach, nutmeg, salt, pepper, grated Parmesan cheese.

Clean and wash the spinach and cook in a heavy saucepan, using just the moisture remaining on the leaves as the cooking liquid. When cooked, drain the spinach, season with a little salt and a dash of nutmeg. In another saucepan, melt the butter, add the flour and using a wire whisk, stir until blended. Meanwhile bring the milk and cream to the boil and add to the mixture of butter and flour. Stir with the whisk until thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper and a dash of cayenne. Cover lightly. Poach the eggs.

Add to the spinach ½ cup of the sauce, mix well and transfer to a shallow heatproof casserole. Arrange the eggs on the bed of spinach and cover with the remaining sauce. Sprinkle liberally with grated Parmesan cheese and bake in a preheated 300° oven until browned.

If your tastes run to Ham and Eggs, why not try Eggs Benedict for a change for that is just what the recipe calls for with the addition of a good Hollandaise sauce and English muffins. Here is the recipe:

EGGS BENEDICT

Six slices of ham, six fresh eggs, six English muffins, Hollandaise Sauce.

Saute the ham briefly in butter. Poach the eggs. Toast the muffins and place a slice of ham on each and add a poached egg. Top with Hollandaise Sauce and garnish with watercress.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

Three egg yolks, ½ cup soft butter, 1 tspn. cold water, ½ tspn. salt, 1 tspn. lemon juice, dash of cayenne pepper.

Combine the egg yolks and the water in the top of a double boiler and beat with a wire whisk over hot but not boiling water until light and fluffy. Add a few spoons of butter and beat continuously until the butter has melted and the sauce thickened. Continue adding the butter bit by bit, stirring constantly. Care should be taken to ensure that the water under the double boiler does not boil. Add the salt, lemon juice and a dash of cayenne pepper.

The English muffins called for in the Eggs Benedict recipe are readily available in our stores today, but if you have any trouble finding them, this recipe can be served using slices of freshly toasted French bread. Bon Appetit!

Crahay Suits Peasant Style

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI)—A Paris designer came out with two new silhouettes for spring—the "peasant look" and the geisha girl line.

J. J. Crahay, a Belgian who designs for the veteran Paris salon of Nina Ricci, offered a grab full of dramatic new ideas at the press preview of his spring collection.

Crahay gave his spring suits what he called the "peasant look" with a blousy jacket hanging to the hip and full in the back. The full sleeves were caught above the wrist with a band.

The peasant look also was used as jackets over dresses, such as a dressy outfit in silver grey shantung, and in full-length coats, such as one in coral.

Some reporters predicted this "Paris peasant" will be a big spring mass fashion. But more controversial was Crahay's picturing the 1963 girl as a Sumari warrior or geisha girl, dripping with long kimono sleeves, tassels, beaded fringes in Japanese colors, Japanese hat-wigs and Japanese fabrics for evening.

One red-lined full-length coat, for example, had kimono sleeves hanging to the bottom of the coat. It was lined with blue and red polka dots (the favorite print for spring so far in Paris) and was worn over a matching polka dot dress.

More confusing was his "kite" cape, shaped like half a kite or a South American Pancho. Some coats had this back panel that was attached to the long sleeves and hung to a "V" in back, clear to the hemline.

Earlier Pierre Balmain showed his collection that was pure Balmain, with slightly wider shoulders, belted waist and skirts just covering the knee.

Brig. Longrigg To Address Canadian Club

Brig. Stephen Longrigg OBE, D. Litt., vice-president of the Royal Central Asian Society, will address a meeting of the Victoria Women's Canadian Club on Friday, Feb. 1, at 2:30 p.m. in the Empress Hotel. His subject will be "Middle East Panorama."

Brig. Longrigg was educated at Highgate School and Oxford University.

In the first war he served in Gallipoli and Mesopotamia. He stayed on as a government official in Iraq until 1931, when he joined the Iraq Petroleum Co. He travelled a good deal in Syria, Saudi Arabia and Palestine.

During the late war he served on the general staff (intelligence) at Cairo. During the latter years of the war he was governor successively of the various former Italian colonies, Cyrenaica, Somalia and Eritrea. He has written several books on the Middle East, including "Four Centuries of Modern Iraq," "Short History of Eritrea," "Syria and Lebanon Under French Mandate."

PERSONAL MENTION

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Lefebvre, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Menard and Mrs. J. Poirier were weekend visitors from Edmonton. While here they were the guests of Dr. Lefebvre's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Lavertu, 1365 Rockland Avenue. They were joined by another sister of the doctor, Miss Cecile Lefebvre, when they left for Seattle to board the Parimira for a South American cruise. They will visit Panama, Chile, Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador before returning.

By Air to Honolulu

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cayave, Vancouver, B.C., left Wednesday, by air for Honolulu where they will spend six weeks' holiday. Also bound for Honolulu are Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hawkins and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Quinton, Salt Spring Island, who sailed Jan. 18 for the Hawaiian Islands, aboard the S.S. "Orsova", and plan to spend two months in Honolulu.

Miscellaneous Shower

Mrs. J. Court and Mrs. W. Haines were co-hostesses at the home of the former at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Barbara Roberts whose marriage to Mr. Charles Sallis took place Saturday, Jan. 26. Among those invited were Mrs. J. Roberts, Mrs. A. Sallis, Mrs. H. Court, Mrs. D. Simmons, Mrs. N. Lyn, Mrs. J. Townsend, Mrs. M. Foster, Mrs. L. Woodley, Mrs. F. Drysdale, Mrs. J. Whitehead, Mrs. L. Court, Mrs. N. Sallisbury and the Misses Donna Haines, Gloria Haines, Elizabeth Townsend, Pat McMeeking, Jacqueline Court and Barbara Anne Court.

Returns from Vancouver

Miss V. Sallis has returned to Fulford Harbour after spending a few days in Vancouver.

For Miss Gibson

Miss Margaret Webber and Miss Margaret Frampton were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower held at the latter's home, 1466 Ocean View Road, in honor of Miss Jacqueline Gibson whose marriage to Mr. Wayne Dunsmuir will take place Feb. 2. Guests included the Misses Mary Gibson, Sheila Galbraith, Mary Ponsford, Sadie Viggers, Nancy McKenzie, Thelma Prior, Irene Sinclair, Gwen Pearce, Lorraine Underwood, Isabel Woods, Doreen Rasmussen, Marg Bugslag, Mae Force, Isabel Osborn, Betty Sapala, Sharongayle Waters, Judy Gibson and Dianne Frampton.

In London

Mr. Robert B. Milne was the only recent overseas visitor from Victoria who has signed the book at British Columbia House, in London.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lane of the Olde England Inn are holidaying at the Boca Chica hotel in Acapulco, Mexico, and are pictured with a large sail fish which they successfully landed. The fish weighed 100 pounds and measured 9 feet, 8 inches. They also caught the 40-pound dolphin held by their fishing guide.

Susan Gray Bride Of Dennis Richards

St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Sidney, was the scene recently of the marriage that united Susan Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gray, and Mr. Dennis Lyle Richards, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Richards, Victoria. Rev. Canon Vaughan-Birch officiated at the evening ceremony.

The bride chose a floor-length gown of white silk taffeta, fashioned with basque bodice and appliques of Guipure lace on the scooped neckline. The sheath front of the skirt swept to a full chapel train. A dainty bow centred the back waistline. A tulle of opalescent crystals held her misty veil of net and lace.

Mr. Bill Hoadie, vocalist, sang "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Mr. Timothy Vernon, organist.

Mrs. W. Sweeney, was matron of honor and Miss Diana Hulme, bridesmaid in blue taffeta ballerina-length gowns. Colleen Richards, the groom's sister, was junior bridesmaid in a yellow silk organza dress. The attendants carried bouquets of carnations.

Mr. Warren Sweeney was best man and Mr. Robert Levin, Mr. Robert Crepin and Mr. James Russell ushered guests to the pews.

Following a reception held at the Hotel Sidney, the couple left for a honeymoon up the island. The new Mrs. Richards donned a winter white wool suit and coat, with muskrat collar stole. Accessories were white and water melon. Mr. and Mrs. Richards will make their home in Victoria.

Mrs. Coffey President

Mrs. G. Coffey was elected president of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday afternoon at the annual meeting held in the Nurse's Residence.

Other members of this year's executive are Mrs. C. C. Ratch, first vice-president; Mrs. L. G. Hamilton, second vice-president; Miss E. Wallace, recording secretary; Mrs. E. J. Harwood, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. Deas, treasurer; Mrs. Ronald R. Hopkins, membership secretary.

Past president, Mrs. H. G. Southin presided at the meeting.

Six new members were welcomed during the year, secretary, Mrs. A. J. Deas, reported. There are 72 active members and 76 associate.

Chief money raising projects during the year were the annual bridge tea, tag day, coffee party and raffle and maternity ward projects, which totalled $5,411.74. Show cases, baby photos and television rentals were services to the hospital.

A total of 44,754 dressings were made by members and 8,947 packages prepared by 338 volunteers in the Central Supply Room.

Mrs. P. E. Corby, Cancer Society representative, was assisted in collecting $520 for the Society. Transportation was provided for patients under treatment. Many items of equipment were supplied for the hospital.

The Lena Mitchell Bursary of $400 was presented to Mrs. Freda Woodworth who is now doing post graduate work at UBC.

The WA's contribution to the Centennial celebrations was the Centennial Tea held in April. Members were invited to the laying of the cornerstone of the new wing by her Royal Highness, Princess Royal, in June.

Christmas trees decorated the wards in the holiday season and a Christmas party was held on Dec. 6.

Treasurer, Mrs. C. C. Ratch reported total receipts of $5,411.74 and total disbursements of $4,098.63. Total with bank account and bonds amounts to $15,084.08.

Other reports were given by Mrs. R. Hopkins, membership convener; Mrs. B. Nash, for Mrs. F. Loveday, authorized buyer; Mrs. P. E. Corby, press; Mrs. W. G. Thorpe, dressings; Mrs. W. McConnell, for Mrs. H. Metcalfe, packaging convener; Mrs. F. Lee, show cases.

Mrs. C. C. Annett reported on flowers sent out; Mrs. M. Hutchison's report was read on used stamps collected; Mrs. H. Hough, gave a report on telephoning done and Mrs. J. C. fey, tea was served.

B. Keane reported on treasurer's report, noted that in 1963 the Royal Victoria Hospital was started and that in 1891 after the founding of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, the first Woman's Auxiliary was formed. It is a voluntary group benefitting the hospital through service. The main project since 1925 has been the maternity wing.

Mr. J. L. Hobbs, brought greetings from the Board of Directors. After Mrs. Southin handed the gavel to Mrs. Coffey, tea was served.

City Police Unveil $785,000 Budget

Preliminary budget for city police services for this year totals more than $750,000.

Actual total in the budget, presented to city police commission Wednesday by Chief John Blackstock, is $785,764—an increase of $37,670 over last year.

The additional money is to cover the cost of obtaining eight more constables, three police dogs, a breathalyzer, walkie-talkie radios and a $7,000 ambulance.

Other new equipment in the estimates includes another police car with two-way radio, a new camera and a $3,600 re-wiring job for police headquarters.

The $1,400 breathalyzer analyzes the breath of persons suspected of being impaired or intoxicated and indicates the amount of alcohol in their breath.

The police commissioners rejected an application for civil defence authorities for more than 1,000 square feet of floor space in police headquarters. Commissioners were told all space in the building is in use. "If we have to rent space to run this department efficiently then we'll have to do it," said Commissioner Gordon Carter.

Commissioners also rejected an application from the Victoria Fish and Game Protection Association for permission to use the police indoor pistol range.

An offer of the use of a speedy boat for police work when needed was accepted from Capt. Gordon Askey of M. R. Cliff Tugboat Co. Ltd.

The letter, released Tuesday, proposed such a meeting for March 26.

Royal Route Lined

The RCAF, RCN and Canadian Coast Guard will maintain a search and rescue capability of "immediate readiness" today while Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip are in the Pacific Coast area en route to Australia and New Zealand.

The royal party is to arrive at Vancouver International Airport in a BOAC jet this morning for a refueling stop-over.

OTHER AGENCIES

The royal aircraft will be under intensive surveillance by Canada's search and rescue organizations and other agencies far into the Atlantic and Pacific and over the nation.

Direct supervision of the agencies alerted for the Queen's passage is exercised by the RCAF co-ordination centre in Vancouver.

PUNZI MOUNTAIN

A special radar watch of the jetliner will be maintained by RCAF at Comox, Vancouver and Puntzi Mountain in the Interior. Search and rescue Albatrosses from 121 Squadron will be stationed over Princeton and Tofino on the incoming and outgoing tracks of the royal aircraft.

An H-21 Vertol helicopter will be airborne at Vancouver at arrival time. Ground search parties at RCAF stations, Vancouver, Comox and Kamloops are alerted for instant action.

RADIO DEVICES

RCAF rescue boats at Kitilano site in Vancouver will be on patrol off the airport and in Georgia Strait. A Neptune maritime patrol bomber, equipped with radio devices for search and homing, is on alert at RCAF Station, Comox.

The RCN will have HMCS

Ottawa patrolling the strait of Juan de Fuca and a helicopter on standby in Victoria, while two Canadian coast guard lifeboats will be on alert at Tofino and Bamfield.

Heart Fund Chief Named

Chairman of the Heart Fund campaign on Vancouver Island this year will again be Victoria lawyer Lloyd McKenzie, it was announced Wednesday.

The drive will be carried on through February and objective will again be $35,000.

Solicitations will be made to all sections of the community by mail.

Goal for B.C. this year is again $200,000.

Mr. McKenzie was chairman of the appeal last year when it reached its $35,000 objective.

Mr. McKenzie said heart research continues to have top priority in the Heart Foundation program.

For Highways

Safety Bureau Sought

There are so many conflicting views on how to reduce B.C.'s mounting traffic death toll that the government should set up a highway safety agency, the legislature was told yesterday.

Dan Campbell (S.C.—Comox) said that the controversy which recently followed the death of a six-year-old boy on the Island Highway near Wellington convinced him that "there is something wrong in the approach we are making to highway accidents in British Columbia."

He said Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi blames accidents on drinking drivers and motor vehicle superintendent George Lindsay wants to reduce the speed limit during the hours of darkness.

"I'm inclined to agree with both of them," said Mr. Campbell.

He asked for the appointment of a safety committee consisting of representatives from the highways department, the motor vehicle branch, attorney-general's department and a UBC traffic expert.

Bureau Names Officers

The new Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau elected an executive Tuesday and set wheels in motion to try out its 1983 budget on municipalities throughout the Island.

At a meeting in Nanaimo directors elected Coun. Walter Dodsworth of Oak Bay president and Coun. William Henderson of Cumberland vice-president.

William Hawkins of Victoria was chosen executive secretary, and Victoria Ald. Austin Curtis treasurer and chairman of the finance committee.

M. R. Eaton of Sidney was made chairman of the membership committee and Mayor R. B. Wilson of Victoria will be offered the chairmanship of the advertising committee.

Letter Added To Slogan

The letter S will be added to a Vancouver Island tourist slogan because of a Gulf Islands man who isn't missing a bet.

Directors of the new Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau met in Nanaimo Tuesday. The new bureau is to take over from the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau the job of bringing tourists to B.C.

Zone A includes Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. The new bureau will take over the old one's copyrighted slogan "Canada's Treasure Island" with a difference.

At the urging of C. R. Horel of Salt Spring Island, the new slogan will be—you guessed it—"Canada's Treasure Islands."

Horn, Tail Lights Might Cow Cars

READING, Eng. (UPI)—Judge Claude Duveen suggests cows being driven along country lanes in the dark should have front and rear lights on them.

The judge denied a suit for damages against a driver whose car crashed into three Jersey cows, killing one, as they were being taken in for milking.

Red Cross Elects Slate

M. L. Fitzgerald was elected president at the annual meeting of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Red Cross last night.

Other officers are Maj.-Gen. C. R. Stein, first vice-president; Mrs. Bruce Humber, second vice-president; H. E. Geddes, honorary secretary-treasurer, and D. J. Lawson, honorary solicitor.

Executive committee includes Mrs. B. F. Thirlwell, Major R. A. C. Hogarth, Mrs. Nora Foster, Col. A. D. Murdoch, Mrs. S. G. Cave, Mrs. G. D. Tyson, Mrs. K. G. Mickelborough, Dr. Olga Jardine, Mrs. W. A. McConnell, Mrs. W. H. Brimblecomb, Mrs. W. Davenport, Mrs. E. H. Farmer, Miss Honor Nash, R. Bray, M. P. Alley, N. Cousins, Denis Brown, C. J. Decker, Major S. H. Okell, W. W. Lewis, T. L. McMaster, Col. J. Q. Gillan, Dr. Geoffrey Gilbert and C. E. Rivett-Carnac.

The CPR ship Princess Marguerite will provide daily round trip service between Seattle and Victoria May 20 to Sept. 28, officials said yesterday. The CPR will not offer a service between Port Angeles and Victoria next summer.

He said the board usually does not concern itself with septic tank construction around Greater Victoria lakes. Issue arose over a Prospect Lake man's application to Saanich for a building permit.

The provincial pollution control board is expected to set

Indians to Greet Bishop

Indian Bands from Victoria to Nanaimo will gather at the East Saanich Reserve Saturday about noon to welcome The Most Rev. Remi De Roo, recently installed as Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria.

The Bishop will be welcomed in full Indian tradition and be given an Indian name in an authentic Indian ceremony in which no other white man in this area has participated.

BY BOAT

Bishop De Roo, accompanied by Father Philip Hanley, pastor of Assumption Parish, will arrive by boat at the East Saanich Reserve, in a re-enactment of the arrival of Bishop Modeste Demers, who was appointed Bishop of Vancouver Island in 1846.

War canoes will paddle out to meet His Excellency and escort him to shore, where seven or eight chiefs will be waiting to extend individual greetings.

Chief Ed Underwood of the East Saanich Band will present the dignitary with a newly carved Saghale stick — the basic Indian catechism used 100 years ago — which is a symbol that they have been faithful to the church.

A cross will be raised as a memorial to the Bishop's visit, a special dinner will be held in a long house and the Bishop will be given an Indian name during a traditional ceremony in another long house.

Store Loss $1,000,000?

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Firemen from three city fire stations and a navy fire boat succeeded Wednesday in controlling a five-hour fire in the three-storey Bowring Brothers department store. A director could not estimate damage, but said "well over $1,000,000 worth of merchandise" was inside.

Revelation of God Bible's Only Task

Rev. Derek Prince of Vancouver has told members of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship Club of Victoria University it is not the purpose of the Bible to prove the existence of God.

Dr. Prince, a former professor of philosophy at Cambridge University, was answering statements made by a University of British Columbia philosophy professor that the Bible does not prove the existence of God.

"The Bible makes no attempt to prove there is a God," said

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. James Montgomery, a historian from Waterloo Lutheran University in Ontario, has challenged a UBC professor's view of the authenticity of historical accounts of the resurrection of Christ.

Dr. Montgomery was invited to UBC to answer Prof. Avrum Stroll's assessment "of the resurrection as a myth."

He said Prof. Stroll committed "four serious historical philosophical errors" which destroyed the validity of his argument.

Prof. Stroll has said it is impossible to separate the real Jesus Christ from the legends which grew from his life.

Dr. Montgomery, who said he believes strongly that Christ is the resurrected son of God, quoted the disciple Paul: "If Christ is not risen from the dead then we (Christians) are all men most miserable."

RADICAL TRADITION
 The UBC professor relied almost exclusively on modern authorities which "represent a radical tradition of New Testament criticism which reflects 19th-century rationalistic presuppositions."

Prof. Stroll committed "the unpardonable historical sin," of neglecting primary documents, the original written accounts. He dismisses the letters of Paul "on the remarkable grounds that all of them have at one time or another been challenged as genuine and because Paul never met Jesus."

BEGIN QUESTION
 Prof. Stroll begs the question, Dr. Montgomery said, in rejecting the authenticity of the gospels because they attribute miracles to Christ after "presupposing miracles did not in fact occur."

The argument that the "unhistorical" picture of Christ in the Bible was a product of "messianic fever" demonstrated "a baleful and inexcusable ignorance of the nature of Jewish messianic expectation at the time of Christ."

BIG GEORGE! By Virgil Partch

"Sooner or later—it had to come to this!"

Too Many Eruptions Chill Blamed On Volcanoes

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — You can blame this winter's unusually severe weather on some 600 active volcanoes around the world, says amateur weatherman Louis Rubin.

In particular, he says, you can put the finger on Tristan da Cunha in the South Atlantic. That volcano erupted for more than 90 days in the spring of 1961 and forced evacuation of the island.

Rubin says ash spewed up by volcanoes climbs high into the atmosphere where continent-sized clouds circle the earth absorbing solar radiation—thus cooling the air beneath it.

The more violent the eruption and the more prolonged the explosions, the colder the weather it will bring, he says.

The 68-year-old amateur seems to have some official backing.

Dr. J. Murray Mitchell Jr., federal climatologist, said volcanic dust could conceivably make the world a bit cooler. The U.S. weather bureau says, however, that you cannot make specific predictions on volcanoes.

His weather activity is not limited to volcanoes. Rubin is the creator of an international cloud chart used by the U.S. Navy and Coast Guard.

APPLICATION FOR A PERMIT UNDER THE "POLLUTION-CONTROL ACT"

Notice is hereby given that applications under the "Pollution-Control Act" has been made for a permit to discharge treated domestic sewage into Colquhoun Creek which flows into Portage Inlet.

The point of discharge will be located between Marjorie Avenue at Colquhoun Creek and a point on Colquhoun Creek, 1.2 km upstream from Marjorie Avenue.

Discharge will be continuous and will average 100,000 imp. gal. per day. The maximum hourly rate of discharge will be 3.5 cfs.

The sewage will be treated by recognized processes to provide an effluent having the following characteristics:

B.O.D.	25 ppm
pH	7-12
Temperature	40° - 70°F

A copy of the application was posted at the proposed point of discharge on the 28th day of January, 1963.

Any person may, within thirty (30) days of the first publication of this application, file with the Secretary of the Pollution-Control Board an objection in writing to the granting of the permit.

Oak Trees Face Axe Along Foul Bay Road

Tenders will be opened Monday for removal of some 30 oak trees along Foul Bay Road. Oak Bay municipal engineer Geoffrey White said this week tree removal will be one of the first stages of work to widen and improve the road to provide a 44-foot-wide thoroughfare.

Work will be done under an agreement between Saanich and Oak Bay. The section of road affected runs along the boundary between the two.

At a meeting this week of the Oak Bay council works committee, it was voted to accept a $23,776 tender by Pacific Lawn Sprinklers Ltd. of Vancouver to provide extension of the municipality's boulevard sprinkler system.

Mr. White was instructed to draw up a draft bylaw restricting the slope of driveways. The decision followed discussion of steep unsurfaced drive way being built by a property owner in Oak Bay.

Private College Protests

NELSON (CPI)—The rector of Notre Dame University College has criticized treatment of private colleges in Dr. John Macdonald's report on higher education in B.C.

Rev. Aquinas Thomas said Wednesday B.C. "still remains the only province in Canada (and one of the few places outside Soviet Russia) which chooses to ignore the place of private institutions in higher education."

NO REASON
"Unfortunately, even in the light of this fact, Dr. Macdonald says he sees no reason to change this attitude."

The statement was accompanied by a brief from the Notre Dame College board of advisers which called for a wholesale reorganization of the present structure of higher education in B.C.

The brief recommended constitution of a provincial board of regents of university education with power to grant degree-granting privileges to institutions of higher learning.

SUGGEST BUDGETS
The board would be empowered to study and recommend to the government on creation of new colleges and to suggest over-all budgets for higher education.

The brief said the college is not opposed to discussion of a suggestion by Dr. Norman MacKenzie, former president of UBC, that denominational colleges such as Notre Dame be federated with public institutions.

ROYAL COMMISSION
If the board's plan is not acceptable to the government, the brief said, there should be a meeting of provincial college officials if they failed to solve B.C.'s problems in higher education, a royal commission should be appointed.

Centennial Party Turnout Past 100 for Chamber

More than 100 tickets have been sold for the 100th birthday party Feb. 8 of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

A reception and dinner will be held at the Empress Hotel with Victor deB. Oland of Halifax, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, as guest speaker.

More than 200 chamber members are expected to attend. Works Minister Chant will represent the provincial government.

Those at the dinner will be presented with numbered copies of a special history of the Victoria chamber being compiled by Victoria historian James K. Nesbitt.

Diplomatic Crisis Looms Over Defence

By HAROLD MORRISON
WASHINGTON (CP)—A Canadian-U.S. diplomatic crisis appeared to be in the making Wednesday night as the state department accused the Canadian government of failing to contribute effectively to joint North American defence.

In a statement that took issue with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's interpretation of Canadian-U.S. nuclear weapons negotiations, the department in effect called on Canada to meet its nuclear commitments, saying the Soviet bomber fleet will be a significant threat throughout this decade and that an effective continental defence against this "common threat" is necessary.

The department called a press conference to issue a statement stripped of the usual diplomatic niceties that belittled reference to a friendly country and slammed away at the major points the prime minister made in his nuclear statements in the Commons last Friday. He was not named.

Canadian anti-U.S. diplomatic sources said later the action was the strongest ever taken in modern times by the U.S. against a Canadian government and that grave repercussions could emerge on either side of the border.

One possibility seen is that the U.S. may raise the question of what future role Canada should play in the established North American air defence system in which an American is commander and a Canadian his deputy.

The importance of the American action was pointed up by a White House source who said President Kennedy had been made aware of Ottawa developments and the nature of the state department rebuttal.

An American source suggested further developments would depend on reaction expressed by Mr. Diefenbaker in the light of the statement issued here and by the U.S. embassy in Ottawa.

Mac: French Action 'Brutal'

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Wednesday night Britain would consult with the United States and its Commonwealth and European Outer Seven partners following the collapse of British negotiations to enter the Common Market.

Macmillan charged France had "firmly and rather brutally" brought the 14-month-long negotiations to an end after it became clear that outstanding points of difference "were about to be settled quite quickly."

In a television broadcast to audiences in Britain, France, Germany, Denmark, Sweden and Belgium, Macmillan said "we must work for the lowering of tariffs all round, for that is Continued on Page 2"

No Nuclear Ideas U.S. SLAPS AT CANADA

OTTAWA (CP)—The U.S. state department said Wednesday night the Canadian government has "not as yet proposed any arrangement" regarding nuclear weapons "sufficiently practical to contribute effectively to North American defence."

The statement was issued by the U.S. embassy here. It said there have been "inconclusive discussions" between the Canadian and U.S. governments concerning provision of nuclear warheads for Canadian forces.

TALKS PROPOSED
The statement added: "Shortly after the Cuban crisis in October, 1962, the Canadian government proposed confidential discussions concerning circumstances under which there might be provision of nuclear weapons for Canadian armed forces in Canada and Europe."

"These discussions have been exploratory in nature, the Canadian government has not as yet proposed any arrangement sufficiently practical to contribute effectively to North American defence."

AGREEMENT
Defence Minister Harkness said Monday in a statement that he believed an agreement on provision of nuclear warheads for the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile and Voodoo jet interceptor "can be arrived at in the near future."

Both Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Mr. Harkness have referred to "negotiations" with the U.S. The state department used the term "discussions."

CONFIDENTIAL
The state department also made a point of saying that the discussions were "confidential" and that the "disclosure" concerning them had been made in the Canadian Commons.

The statement also said the Anglo-American Nassau agreements "raise no question of the appropriateness of nuclear weapons for Canadian forces in fulfilling their NATO or NORAD obligations."

IN DOUBT
Mr. Diefenbaker said in the Commons last Friday the Nassau agreements have "placed in doubt" the nuclear role of the RCAF air division in Europe.

The state department revealed that the "discussions" with Canada concern Canadian forces in NATO as well as in NORAD. Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Harkness referred only to NORAD.

NOT ALTERNATIVE
The statement said reference was made in the Commons debate—it was made by Mr. Diefenbaker, among others—to NATO's need for more conventional forces. It added:

"A flexible and balanced defence requires that increased conventional forces are not an alternative to effective NATO or NORAD defence arrangements using nuclear-capable weapons systems."

AIR DEFENCE
"NORAD is designed to defend the North American continent against air attack. The Soviet bomber fleet will remain at least throughout this decade a significant element in the Soviet strike force."

An effective continental defence against this common threat is necessary."

PHASING OUT
Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday: "More and more there is a phasing out in connection with the bomber threat."

The state department said provision of nuclear weapons to Canadian forces would not involve "expansion of independent nuclear capability, or an increase in the nuclear club."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday: "We will do nothing to extend the nuclear family."

CUSTODY
The statement concluded: "As in the case of other allies custody of the U.S. nuclear weapons would remain with the U.S. Joint control fully consistent with national sovereignty can be worked out to cover the use of such weapons by Canadian forces."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday: "We will maintain Canadian sovereignty."

Desire to Help

Pearson Voices Surprise

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson said he found it "surprising" that the United States government found it necessary to issue a statement Wednesday night about Canadian-U.S. negotiations on Canadian acquisition of nuclear warheads.

"It was prompted, no doubt, by the desire to help clear up the confusion produced and compounded by conflicting versions of our defence policy from the prime minister and the minister of national defence," Mr. Pearson said in a statement issued by his office.

KEY PART
"The most important part of the statement is the confirmation that talks initiated by the government of Canada with a view to the acquisition of nuclear weapons for Canadian forces have been going on for the last three months."

"It is also important to learn from the U.S. government that the Nassau conversations had no bearing on this Canadian problem."

No Comment By John D

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday night he would make no comment on the United States state department's statement concerning nuclear weapons until after he has studied it on his return to Ottawa.

'Bombshell' Says Thompson

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday night that the U.S. state department comment on Canada's nuclear policy debate is a "bombshell" to say the least—it could be the spark to topple the government.

He said Prime Minister Diefenbaker must either back up a statement by Defence Minister Harkness or ask for his resignation.

Mr. Thompson also chastised the U.S. for "blatant diplomatic interference" in Canadian affairs.

He said the method chosen—a statement issued to the press by the U.S. state department rather than a diplomatic note—may strengthen Mr. Diefenbaker's position in spite of prime ministerial indecision on nuclear policy, "because all true-blue Canadians will resent the approach."

Forces' Pay Rising?

OTTAWA (CP)—A pay increase for the armed forces is receiving consideration, Finance Minister Nowlan said Wednesday.

But he declined direct comment on Ottawa rumors that the 125,000 members of the navy, army and air force are to get an eight-per-cent boost retroactive to Jan. 1.

Mr. Nowlan said the treasury board still is dealing with salary adjustments for various civil service classifications.

Bit of Snow Beats Victoria Forecast

A few light flakes of snow were falling on Victoria shortly before press time this morning.

Earlier, a weather forecast said light snow or freezing rain may fall here this afternoon.

Final Fling?

With milder weather forecast for Victoria, today may be the last day of ice skating for some time. Children and ice made happy combination yesterday at Chew's Pond on West Saanich Road.

Britain Back In Arctic

LONDON (AP)—Blizzards swept Britain and much of Western Europe Wednesday with the return of Arctic cold to wintry areas.

Temperatures plunged to freezing in central London and traffic chaos spread across the country. A man was killed in a crash involving 10 vehicles north of the British capital.

Threat Over Arctic

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States is seeking to improve its North American bomb alert system on the assumption that the main Soviet missile attack because this would reduce the missiles atomic payload and accuracy.

The Pentagon therefore concludes that if an attack should come, the main thrust would be across the frozen Arctic wastes, sweeping down on Canada and the U.S. on a route along which lies a huge ballistic warning system that would provide an "adequate" 15-minute warning time before the missiles reached their targets.

Arctic radar surveillance is to be continued and strengthened and the bomb alert system is to be improved so that the North American Air Defence system centred on Colorado Springs, Colo., would know automatically where the enemy warhead landed and the yield and height of the burst. This would provide more information about the possible radiation spread.

Better Warning Sought

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said Wednesday.

McNamara told a congressional armed services committee he doubts the Russians would attempt a sneak Arctic missile attack because this would reduce the missiles atomic payload and accuracy.

The Pentagon therefore concludes that if an attack should come, the main thrust would be across the frozen Arctic wastes, sweeping down on Canada and the U.S. on a route along which lies a huge ballistic warning system that would provide an "adequate" 15-minute warning time before the missiles reached their targets.

Namara said Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles—which cost the U.S. about $2,000,000,000—have only a limited life.

These weapons suffer the same "defects" as manned interceptors—vulnerability to ballistic missile attack. But because the U.S. has already paid for its eight Bomarc sites, the Bomarc system will be continued for "several years."

Canada has two Bomarc squadrons, but no nuclear warheads for them.

Sub-Hunter Crashes

NEW YORK (AP)—A new type of submarine hunting navy plane crashed into the Atlantic about 230 miles south-east of New York Wednesday while on a lengthy practice mission, bringing to four the number of plane crashes since Tuesday night. Apparently 14 persons aboard were killed.

A U.S. Air Force B-52 jet bomber crashed Wednesday in the rugged Sangre de Cristo Mountains 15 miles northeast of Santa Fe, N.M. There were at least four survivors of the defence developments, McCreary of six

Navy Taste Changes After Dry Rum Run

By DAVE MCINTOSH
OTTAWA (CP)—Tipping note from the public accounts: The navy spent $127,879 for rum in the 1961-62 fiscal year compared with $118,170 in the previous year.

The navy also changed its brand of rum, switching its total purchase to Lam's Rum Company Limited, Montreal, from Captain Morgan Rum Distillers Limited, Lasalle, Que.

Such a switch is not made frivolously.

A five-man testing panel in the defence department's chemicals inspection branch puts rum samples submitted by distillers through rigorous organoleptic (taste and odor) tests.

The tasting board used to be all-civilian when the tests were begun in 1959. But the navy insisted on representation, which it now has.

The tasting process is strictly a dry run, though. The taster may only roll the rum around on his tongue and then spit it out, sipping water and nibbling on soda biscuits between his exertions. And the tasting has lasted only a couple of days because the navy buys its rum in bulk once a year.

There are no full-time tasters. Volunteers taste and sniff the bouquet for only 15 or 20 minutes and then return to their regular work.

Up 7.34 Per Cent

Greater Victoria School Bill: $9,380,000

By IAN STREET
Local municipalities yesterday received copies of the $9,380,000 Greater Victoria school board budget for 1963—an increase of 7.34 per cent over last year.

Unknown factors, officials said, make it impossible at this time to judge the impact of the budget on the local taxpayer.

One of the keys to the puzzle will be produced when Premier Bennett brings down his budget, expected Feb. 8. At that time it will be learned what was meant by a throne speech reference to increased grants for school districts.

It won't be until mid-April, however, that the final answer is known, when the government announces the amount in grants for each school district and sets the basic mill rate for school purposes.

Despite the overall increase, operating costs for Greater Victoria schools in the current year, exclusive of teachers' salaries, do not contain any non-shareable expenditures which would be chargeable in full to local taxpayers.

The budget does include one major non-shareable item of $585,161 for teachers' salaries.

A school board spokesman said yesterday the increase to be borne entirely by local taxpayers, reflects the 1 per cent wage boost won by teachers recently at a cost of more than $300,000.

The 1962 budget contained $389,130 in non-shareable teachers' salaries.

This non-shareable cost could be modified if new aid to school districts takes the form of increased basic salary grants for teachers.

Temporary refuge with generous neighbors is given Mr. and Mrs. Knud Poulsen who lost their home at 4254 Prospect Lake Road in a swift fire Wednesday. Shirley, 14, with her father, was at hospital for new leg, cast when fire occurred. Paul, 10, with pup Scampy, discovered fire in roof and warned his mother, here holding her grandson, Kevin Mazarolle, 11 months. Daughter Betty, 17, was at school, and daughter Helen Mazarolle was at work.—(Bud Kinsman)

New Duncan Courthouse Will Start This Year

All in Four Minutes—Minus Baking Soda

LADYSMITH—Six eggs, one pound of bacon, three pieces of toast, a stack of hot cakes and four cups of coffee—all downed in four minutes? Who ate that much that quickly? Who else but a logger?

Safety co-ordinator Axel Anderson of Ladysmith division, Crown Zellerbach, remembers once seeing a logger devour this breakfast at the former C.Z. Canada boarding house, now being torn down.

Active Convention Set for Teachers

DUNCAN—More than 1,000 teachers from Qualicum Beach to Sooke are expected to participate in this year's south Vancouver Island teachers' convention to be held here Feb. 15 and 16. Heading a large organizing staff of local teachers is Peter Owen, principal of George Bonner junior secondary school.

Committee spokesman Grant Garnett said the theme of the convention is Education for a Changing World. Some of the many speakers on 70 subjects are: Dan Campbell, A. J. Ing, and Mr. Garnett said Paschal O'Toole, Victoria branch; National Film Board, will demonstrate the possibilities of films in modern teaching.

Ancient Ceremony

Indian Greeting For New Bishop

Indian Bands from Victoria to Nanaimo will gather at the East Saanich Reserve Saturday about noon to welcome The Most Rev. Remi De Roo, recently installed as Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria.

The Bishop will be welcomed in full Indian tradition and be given an Indian name in an authentic Indian ceremony in which no other white man in this area has participated.

BY BOAT

Bishop De Roo, accompanied by Father Philip Hanley, pastor of Assumption Parish, will arrive by boat at the East Saanich Reserve, in a re-enactment of the arrival of Bishop Modeste Demers, who was ap-

Works Minister W. N. Chant told the Colonist last night he expects a start will be made on construction of a new Duncan courthouse this year.

But he couldn't say when construction would start because new plans will have to be prepared first.

VERY BEST

He said that blueprints already prepared are out of date and he wants to give Duncan residents "the very best."

Twice earlier in the day he hinted that Duncan wouldn't be disappointed in the vague reference to a new building which was made in the throne speech last Thursday.

WILL BE PLEASED

Before the House started its daily sitting he told reporters that the people of Duncan shouldn't lose heart.

And during his own speech Opposition leader Robert Strachan asked, "How about the courthouse at Duncan?" and was told, "You're going to be well pleased eventually up there."

MOST OFFICES

Mr. Chant, who first promised a new Duncan courthouse in 1956, indicated the building would probably embrace most of the provincial government offices in the community.

He said Duncan is a growing Vancouver Island community and that he wanted to be sure that a building put up there now would remain adequate for a reasonable length of time.

Gravel Fears Allayed

COURTENAY—Worries about spoiling local beaches by removal of gravel may prove to be unnecessary.

Recently two companies applied for leases, and local property owners have raised objections fearing erosion of the bank by the roadside and general spoiling of the beaches at Point Holmes, it was learned.

PRIOR RIGHT

But before any leases would be granted the upland owners of property, who have prior right to any lease, would be consulted and any objection likely to carry more weight than the applications.

Department of Lands handles the lease applications, and the department of highways would rule on danger to highways through erosion.

Conflicting Views

Road Safety Agency Urged

There are too many conflicting views of how to reduce B.C.'s mauling traffic death toll that the government should set up a highway safety agency, the legislature was told yesterday.

Dan Campbell (SC—Comox)

said that the controversy which recently followed the death of a six-year-old boy on the Island Highway near Wellington convinced him that "there is something wrong in the approach we are making to highway accidents in British Columbia."

He said Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi blames accidents on drinking drivers and motor vehicle superintendent George Lindsay wants to reduce the speed limit during the hours of darkness.

"I'm inclined to agree with both of them," said Mr. Campbell.

He asked for the appointment of a safety committee consisting of representatives from the highways department, the motor vehicle branch, attorney-general's department and a UBC traffic expert.

North Island Ferry

Powell River Link Likely This Year

Comox Social Credit MLA Dan Campbell told the legislature yesterday he thinks a Comox-Powell River ferry service may be inaugurated this year.

He said 1962 tourist figures showed that only four per cent of cars coming to the Island travelled north of Nanaimo.

He still believes a ferry linking Port Hardy at the extreme north end of the Island with Prince Rupert is the best answer for north-island development, but would be glad to see a Nanaimo-Powell River-Comox service as a first step.

"I think we can get the show on the road this year with a ferry from Comox to Powell River," he said.

Later, outside the House, he said a private firm has indicated its interest in the route provided it can get assurance the government ferry service won't initiate a competitive route.

Bureau Names Officers

The new Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau elected an executive Tuesday and set wheels in motion to try out its 1963 budget on municipalities throughout the Island.

At a meeting in Nanaimo directors elected Coun. Walter Dodsworth of Oak Bay president and Coun. William Henderson of Cumberland vice-president.

William Hawkins of Victoria was chosen executive secretary, and Victoria Ald. Austin Curtis treasurer and chairman of the finance committee.

M. R. Eaton of Sidney was made chairman of the membership committee and Mayor R. B. Wilson of Victoria will be offered the chairmanship of the advertising committee.

Treasure Islands

Letter Added To Old Slogan

The letter S will be added to a Vancouver Island tourist slogan because of a Gulf Islands man who isn't missing a bet.

Directors of the new Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau met in Nanaimo Tuesday. The new bureau is to take over from the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau the job of bringing tourists to Zone A of B.C.

Zone A includes Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. The new bureau will take over the old one's copyrighted slogan "Canada's Treasure Islands."

At the urging of C. R. Hord of Salt Spring Island, the new slogan will be—you guessed it—"Canada's Treasure Islands."

POULTRY farmers on Vancouver Island and the Mainland hope to have an egg marketing board established before May to stabilize prices and production output.

Don Campbell of Saanich, a director of the B.C. Egg Producers' Association and of the Vancouver Island Poultry Producers' Association, said the proposal for an egg marketing board was adopted, 300 to 19, by poultry farmers at a recent meeting in Abbotsford.

Mr. Campbell said the primary reason for the planned formation of an egg marketing board is the indiscriminate financing of more and more private persons by large feed companies, creating an increasing surplus of eggs. It will be the first egg marketing board in Canada.

Mr. Campbell explained after the forming of the board every egg producer will be required to work under a quota system which will safeguard existing farmers and discourage new enterprises.

He said the broiler growers were in a similar position as the egg farmers until a broiler board was formed last spring. "The board in this branch of agriculture," Mr. Campbell maintained, "has alleviated a chaotic situation."

One of the largest broiler growers on Vancouver Island, James Flynn of Duncan, said the broiler board controls production and marketing, and it is against the law to market birds without a permit.

Mr. Flynn said: "This action has led to stability." He is in favor of vertical integration of agricultural enterprises as long as it is controlled by the farmers and not used by any other group detrimental to the farmers' interests.

The manager of the Cowichan Creamery, Hamish Mutter, feels an egg marketing board is the only way to help poultry farmers maintain their independence.

He said at least two large feed companies have set up their own egg producing plants and compete with their own customers to endanger the latter's livelihood. Despite the threatening trend of egg overproduction the same interests still encourage people to start chicken farms to sell more feed.

Vancouver Island has a total of 205 egg producers but only a certain percentage operate on a full time basis. About 75 per cent of the province's poultry operators are in the Fraser Valley with the rest on Vancouver Island and in the Okanagan Valley.

The 18 Vancouver Island broiler growers are headed by James Flynn who was re-elected president of the Vancouver Island branch of the B.C. Broiler Growers' Association. Bert Fatt of Victoria was re-elected secretary and Gordon Quan and Colin Martin are directors.

The three largest growers on the Island are Van Derweerd of Victoria—with 3,000,000 birds—Mr. Fatt with 200,000 and Mr. Flynn with 125,000 a year.

Mr. Flynn said several processing plants are operated by the Broiler Growers' Association which follows the order of the B.C. Broiler Marketing Board.

To Load Lumber

Third Berth Needed At Nanaimo

NANAIMO—Nanaimo port needs a third lumber loading berth at Assembly wharf if business is to be increased, harbor master John Dunham told Kiwanis Tuesday.

Sixty per cent of lumber shipped from the port was trucked here from Island mills, and Nanaimo must compete with other ports, such as Victoria, for this business, he said.

STORAGE

An important factor is storage space with 1,000,000 board feet measure requiring one acre, and a new berth likely would provide 17 acres as foreshore is filled from dredging at the site of the berth, the harbor master said.

This third berth, he said, would allow guaranteeing it adequate storage and speedy shipment as more freighters would call here for cargo. Construction cost is estimated at $800,000 with $500,000—a federal responsibility—for dredging.

At Nanaimo

New Development To Draw Tourists

NANAIMO—A $300,000 tourist development is currently in progress on the west side of Newcastle Channel near Western Marine. Planned are 30 self-contained units for families.

Land reclamation and dredging will eventually provide two additional acres of land.

The project is called The Moby Dick and will feature moorings for boatmen and yachtsmen, "safe" play areas for children and for fishing, and fresh and salt water swimming pools.

So far, 50,000 cubic yards have been dredged, and it is expected The Moby Dick will be in operation by the summer of 1964.

Fishers Send Petition

COURTENAY—A petition has gone to Ottawa, signed by 30 local fishermen and residents asking for a new breakwater and additional floats at Fanny Bay.

Removal of the log booms, when the shingle mill closed, robbed the local waters of protection for boats there.

The protection is required for the gill netters and trollers which winter at Fanny Bay as well as a number of small local boats.

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—A Canadian-U.S. diplomatic crisis appeared to be in the making Wednesday night as the state department accused the Canadian government of failing to contribute effectively to joint North American defence.

In a statement that took issue with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's interpretation of Canadian-U.S. nuclear weapons negotiations, the department in effect called on Canada to meet its nuclear commitments, saying the Soviet bomber fleet will be a significant threat throughout this decade and that an effective continental defence against this "common threat" is necessary.

The department called a press conference to issue a statement stripped of the usual diplomatic niceties that befell reference to a friendly country and slammed away at the major points the prime minister made in his nuclear statements in the Commons last Friday. He was not named.

Canadian and U.S. diplomatic sources said later the action was the strongest ever taken in modern times by the U.S. against a Canadian government and that grave repercussions could emerge on either side of the border.

One possibility seen is that the U.S. may raise the question of what future role Canada should play in the established North American air defence system in which an American is commander and a Canadian his deputy.

The importance of the American action was pointed up by a White House source who said President Kennedy had been made aware of Ottawa developments and the nature of the state department rebuttal.

An American source suggested that further developments would depend on reaction expressed by Mr. Diefenbaker in the light of the statement, issued here and by the U.S. embassy in Ottawa.

French Action 'Brutal'

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Wednesday night Britain would consult with the United States and its Commonwealth and European Outer Seven partners following the collapse of British negotiations to enter the Common Market.

Macmillan charged France had "firmly and rather brutally" brought the 14-month-long negotiations to an end after it became clear that outstanding points of difference "were about to be settled quite quickly."

In a television broadcast to audiences in Britain, France, Germany, Denmark, Sweden and Belgium, Macmillan said "we must work for the lowering of tariffs all round, for that is Continued on Page 2

Forces' Pay Rising?

OTTAWA (CP)—A pay increase for the armed forces is receiving consideration, Finance Minister Nowlan said Wednesday.

But he declined direct comment on Ottawa rumors that the 125,000 members of the navy, army and air force are to get an eight-per-cent boost retroactive to Jan. 1.

Mr. Nowlan said the treasury board still is dealing with salary adjustments for various civil service classifications.

Britain Back In Arctic

LONDON (AP)—Blizzards swept Britain and much of Western Europe Wednesday with the return of Arctic cold to many areas. Temperatures plunged to freezing in central London and traffic chaos spread across the country. A man was killed in a crash involving 40 vehicles north of the British capital.

Threat Over Arctic

Better Warning Sought

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States is seeking to improve its North American bomb alert system on the assumption that the main Soviet missile and bomber threat still comes from the Arctic.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said Wednesday. McNamara told a congressional armed services committee he doubts the Russians would attempt a sneak Arctic missile attack because this would reduce the missiles' atomic payload and accuracy.

MAIN THREAT

The Pentagon therefore concludes that if an attack should come, the main thrust would be across the frozen Arctic wastes, sweeping down on Canada and the U.S. on a route along which lies a huge ballistic warning system that would provide an "adequate" 15-minute warning time.

Arctic radar surveillance is to be continued and strengthened and the bomb alert system is to be improved so that the North American Air Defence system centred on Colorado Springs, Colo., would know automatically where the enemy warhead landed and the yield and height of the burst. This would provide more information about the possible radiation spread.

LIMITED LIFE

Dealing with other continental and North Atlantic defence developments, McNamara said Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles—which cost the U.S. about $2,000,000—have only a limited life.

These weapons suffer the same "defects" as manned interceptors—vulnerability to ballistic missile attack. But because the U.S. has already paid for its eight Bomarc sites, the Bomarc system will be continued for "several years."

Canada has two Bomarc squadrons, but no nuclear warheads for them.

U.S. SLAPS OTTAWA

OTTAWA (CP)—The U.S. state department said Wednesday night the Canadian government has "not as yet proposed any arrangement" regarding nuclear weapons "sufficiently practical to contribute effectively to North American defence."

TALES PROPOSED

The statement added: "Shortly after the Cuban crisis in October, 1962, the Canadian government proposed confidential discussions concerning circumstances under which there might be provision of nuclear weapons for Canadian armed forces in Canada and Europe."

"These discussions have been exploratory in nature; the Canadian government has not as yet proposed any arrangement sufficiently practical to contribute effectively to North American defence."

AGREEMENT

Defence Minister Harkness said Monday in a statement that he believed an agreement on provision of nuclear warheads for the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile and Voodoo jet interceptor "can be arrived at in the near future."

'CONFIDENTIAL'

The state department also made a point of saying that the discussions were "confidential" and that the "disclosure" concerning them had been made in the Canadian Commons.

The statement also said the Anglo-American Nassau agreements "raise no question of the appropriateness of nuclear weapons for Canadian forces in fulfilling their NATO or NORAD obligations."

'IN DEBT'

Mr. Diefenbaker said in the Commons last Friday the Nassau agreements have "placed in doubt" the nuclear role of the RCAF air division in Europe.

The state department revealed that the "discussions" with Canada concern Canadian forces in NATO as well as in NORAD. Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Harkness referred only to NORAD.

NOT ALTERNATIVE

The statement said reference was made in the Commons debate—it was made by Mr. Diefenbaker, among others—to NATO's need for more conventional forces. It added: "A flexible and balanced defence requiring increased conventional forces are not an alternative to effective NATO or NORAD defence arrangements using nuclear-capable weapons systems."

AIR DEFENCE

"NORAD is designed to defend the North American continent against air attack. The Soviet bomber fleet will remain at least throughout this decade a significant element in the Soviet strike force."

"An effective continental defence against this common threat is necessary."

PHASING OUT

Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday: "More and more there is a phasing out in connection with the bomber threat."

The state department said provision of nuclear weapons to Canadian forces would not involve "expansion of independent nuclear capability, or an increase in the nuclear club."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday: "We will do nothing to extend the nuclear family."

CUSTODY

The statement concluded: "As in the case of other allies custody of the U.S. nuclear weapons would remain with the U.S. Joint control fully consistent with national sovereignty can be worked out to cover the use of such weapons by Canadian forces."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Friday: "We will maintain Canadian sovereignty."

Desire to Help

Pearson Voices Surprise

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson said he found it "surprising" that the United States government found it necessary to issue a statement Wednesday night about Canada-U.S. negotiations on Canadian acquisition of nuclear warheads. "It was prompted, no doubt, by the desire to help clear up the confusion produced and compounded by conflicting versions of our defence policy from the prime minister and the minister of national defence," Mr. Pearson said in a statement issued by his office.

KEY PART

"The most important part of the statement is the confirmation that talks initiated by the government of Canada with a view to the acquisition of nuclear weapons for Canadian forces have been going on for the last three months."

"It is also important to learn from the U.S. government that the Nassau conversations had no bearing on this Canadian problem."

No Comment By John D

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday night he would make no comment on the United States state department's statement concerning nuclear weapons until after he has studied it on his return to Ottawa.

'Bombshell' Says Thompson

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday night that the U.S. state department comment on Canada's nuclear policy debate is a "bombshell" to say the least—it could be the spark to jump the government."

He said Prime Minister Diefenbaker must either back up a statement by Defence Minister Harkness or ask for his resignation.

Mr. Thompson also chastised the U.S. for "blatant undiplomatic interference" in Canadian affairs.

He said the method chosen—a statement issued to the press by the U.S. state department rather than a diplomatic note—may strengthen Mr. Diefenbaker's position in spite of prime ministerial indecision on nuclear policy, "because all true-blue Canadians will resent the approach."

Up 7.34 Per Cent

Greater Victoria School Bill: $9,380,000

By IAN STREET

Local municipalities yesterday received copies of the $9,380,000 Greater Victoria school board budget for 1963—an increase of 7.34 per cent over last year.

Unknown factors, officials said, make it impossible at this time to judge the impact of the budget on the local taxpayer.

One of the keys to the puzzle will be produced when Premier Bennett brings down his budget, expected Feb. 8. At that time it will be learned what was meant by a throne speech reference to increased grants for school districts.

It won't be until mid-April, however, that the final answer is known, when the government announces the amount in grants for each school district and sets the basic mill rate for school purposes.

Despite the overall increase, operating costs for Greater Victoria schools in the current year, exclusive of teachers' salaries, do not contain any non-shareable expenditures which would be chargeable in full to local taxpayers.

The budget does include one major non-shareable item of $395,161 for teachers' salaries.

A school board spokesman said yesterday the increase to be borne entirely by local taxpayers reflects the 4 per cent wage boost won by teachers recently at a cost of more than $200,000.

The 1962 budget contained $389,139 in non-shareable teachers' salaries.

This non-shareable cost could be modified if new aid to school districts takes the form of increased basic salary grants for teachers.
